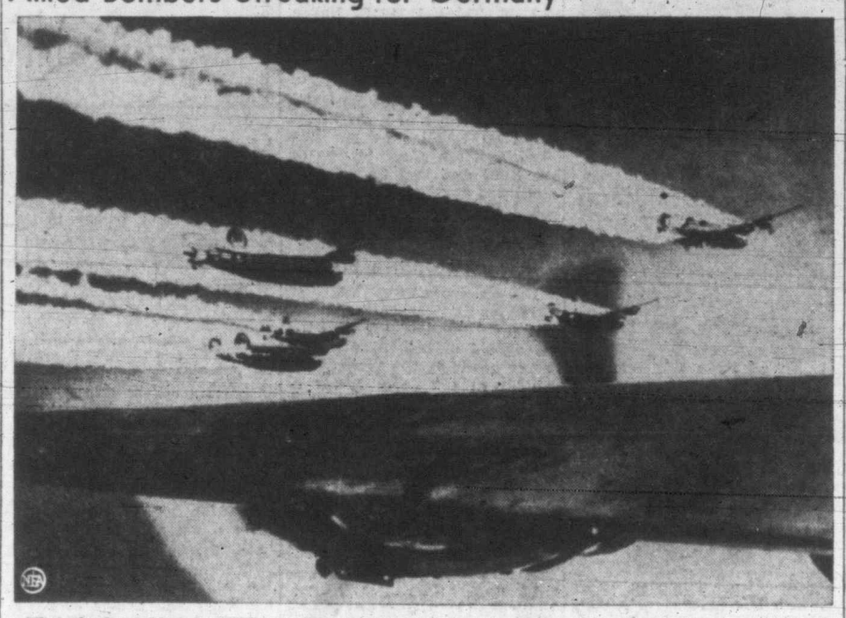
Allied Bombers Streaking for Germany



They look as if they were on fire. But instead, these Liberator bombers, flying high over the European continent, were blazing a trail of trouble for Berlin. White streaks of vapor marked their course, but no German fighters rose to challenge this raid. In two hours over the enemy capital, some 650 heavy bombers dropped 1,500 tons of explosives.

Nazi Bases Bombed By Day and Night

LONDON (AP)—U.S. air task forces totaling 1,000 to 1,500 bombers and fighters struck at the Germans' anti-invasion air installations of Belgium and France today after heavy R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. Sunday night raids on rail targets at Lille and in the southern outskirts of Paris.

Drawing the enemy's coastal fighter defences into action for the first time in weeks, the American heavies bombed military objectives in the Pas-de-Calais area, the aircraft repair depot at Evere and Vilvorde and the airfield at Melsbroek near Brussels, Belgium, the aircraft factory at Bourges, 115 miles south of Paris, and the airfield at Orleans, 60 miles south of Paris.

Three heavy bombers and four fighters were lost in the multiple assault, and seven of the enemy's planes were shot down in combat, a communuique announced, in addition to about 40 which air base reports said were destroyed on the ground.

It was the third day of heavy attacks by U.S. planes. Sunday they plunged deep into Europe to strike at aircraft factories in Poland, East Prussia and northeast Germany. Saturday they bombed Brunswick airplane plants and airdromes near Frankfurt, wrecking 148 Nazi planes in battle.

Sunday's toll of German planes was 92, an announcement said—43 destroyed by the bombers, 20 shot down by escorting fighters and 29 destroyed or damaged on the ground. This brought to 240 the total of announced knockouts for Saturday-Sunday operations by the U.S. air force.

The daylight fleet took off soon after the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers had returned from a Sunday night raid on Villeneuve-St. Georges, a junction on the main rail lines from southern and western France just 12 miles south of the centre of Paris, and Lille, important manufacturing centre and junction on northern France rail lines.

Canadian bombers provided about half the force which attacked the railway yards at Villeneuve-St. Georges, while several other squadrons of Halifaxes bombed installations at Lille.

No Planes Lost By Canadians

An R.C.A.F. communique, which also told of a Sunday afternoon attack by R.C.A.F. fighter bombers against targets in northern France, reported all the Canadian aircraft returned safely.

Mosquito bombers hit Mannheim and other unspecified objectives, and extensive mine-laying operations were carried out at long range, all at a night cost of 11 planes, the Air Ministry said.

R.A.F. Mosquitoes hit Essen and other northwest German targets Saturday night.

It was the first time this city had been announced as a specific target.

A German broadcast on the night raids declared the "attackers scattered bombs over a vast area and some 10 localities were severely hit."

Five hundred to 750 U.S. heavy bombers took part in widespread daylight assaults Sunday, smashing at aircraft factories at Poznan (Posen) and in the Gydnia area of Poland, Marienburg in East Prussia and Warnemunde and Tutow in northeast Germany in operations which took some of the bombers beyond range of their fighter escort.

Yorkshire Miners Return to Work

LONDON (CP)—Thousands of south Yorkshire miners returned to work today, virtually ending a strike of about 10 days by nearly 100,000 men that cost an estimated 1,000,000 tons of coal.

A total of 75,000 men had returned this morning, with 20,000 more due back in the pits Wednesday. Thirty thousand miners resumed work in the Doncaster district alone after a vote Sunday night. Hemsworth miners also agreed to return and voted confidence in J. A. Hall, Yorkshire Minesworkers' Association president, who had termed the wildcat strike a "stab in the back" to him.

In Belfast, 35,000 shipyard and aircraft workers will return to work Tuesday and Wednesday. Some have been on strike six weeks.

U.S. Criticism Of Army Cut Surprises Aussies

MELBOURNE (AP)—Government circles expressed surprise today over reports from the U.S. that Australia's decision to withdraw 90,000 men from the army in the coming year had caused critical comment in American congressional circles.

It was felt the Washington government fully appreciates Australia's manpower position and is aware of the Commonwealth's undertaking to feed, clothe and supply both its own and the Allied forces in this area, including Americans. Mass transfers of workers from other industries to food production is necessary under Australia's vast food program.

OLDER MEN

Most of the army withdrawals, it was explained, will comprise men past their jungle fighting prime, war veterans of several years' service, unfit classes and older garrision men. Many of these will be replaced by incoming age classes and by combing men from industry. At present many thousands of unskilled workers between 18 and 35 are being drafted into the services and are being replaced by boys and women capable of unskilled work.

Air Minister Drakeford, commenting on the reports from the U.S., said the Australian air force is expanding tremendously. It now is 30 times larger than it was at the outbreak of the war.

In Fair Ratio To U.S. Effort

LONDON (AP)—The London office of the Australian News and Information Bureau, referring to criticism from "certain American politicians of Australia's army reduction plan, cited figures today that Australia's armed forces are equivalent on a population basis to those of the United States.

Australia's enlistments last December totaled 913,000, or more than 11 per cent of the population, the bureau said. The 90,000 men slated to be mustered out within a year are needed for essential war industries and to enable Australia to fulfill her commitments to feed every Allied service man in the southwest Pacific and to help New Zealand meet U.S. requirements in the south Pacific, it continued.

In the U.S. at the week-end Australia's decision to cut down the size of its army in the midst of war war labeled "shocking," "startling" and "almost unbelievable" by senators of U.S. Senate military committee.

What occasioned their comment was the statement in Canberra Saturday by army Minister Francis E. Forde that Australia's manpower situation requires an army reduction of 90,000 in the next 12 months, including 20,000 men for industry.

SEES CONTRAST

"That's a startling statement," said Senator Edwin Johnson (Dem., Colo.), "in view of the all-out effort we are making to send our army all over the world to save Australia and the other countries from the common enemy."

Senator Styles Bridges (Rep., N.H.), remarked that "after all, all the United Nations are in this war together and we are going up or down together." He added: "It's pretty surprising and shocking, at a time America is straining every resource as the result of the armed services demands, to have one of the other United Nations announce openly that it is cutting the size of its armed forces."

CALLED UNBELIEVABLE

Senator George Wilson (Rep., Iowa), mentioned both military and lend-lease demands on the U.S. and said that in view of this, "it seems almost unbelievable something like this can happen, especially when our own high authorities now are insisting on getting to the bottom of the barrel on manpower and taking for our armed forces men much needed in industry and agriculture."

Meanwhile in Australia Mr. Forde said there was no other way of meeting demands of primary and other essential industries for more labor.

New Zealanders Smash 2 Points On Cassino Front

By LYNN HEINZERLING

NAPLES (AP)—New Zealand troops inflicted casualties on the Germans in sudden attacks against two strongpoints at Sant'Angelo, three miles south of Cassino, headquarters announced today, while Allied troops in ruined Cassino itself were subjected to renewed violent mortaring and shelling.

The New Zealanders partially destroyed one of the enemy positions.

The shelling of Cassino followed days of comparative quiet in the devastated town. The increase in German activity also included dropping of propaganda leaflets three miles north of the town and heavy shelling in the upper Rapido valley northeast of Sant 'Elia, which is four miles northeast of Cassino.

The Germans, meanwhile, seemed to be on the move in the lower Garigliano sector of the main front. A great deal of transport movemen. was observed and in the Ausente valley 21 tanks or self-propelled guns were seen about 2½ miles northeast of Minturno. Five of them were believed knocked out by artillery fire and the Nazis subsequently put out smoke pots to conceal their movements.

13 Held in Liquor Round-up at Halifax

HALIFAX (CP) — Additional arrests have brought to 13 the number of freight handlers and stevedores who will appear in court on charges of having liquor in their possession illegally. The arrests are the sequel to the handling of the largest liquor shipment to arrive in this port in recent months—38,000 cases.

Two of the men were fined $50 and costs when they pleaded guilty under the Customs Act today. Other cases were scheduled to be heard later today.

It was reported that several more have been served with summonses to appear in court.

The men who were fined admitted possession of a pint bottle in one instance and a quart plus a pint in the other.

Report Commandos Raid French Beach, Take Mortar Home

LONDON (CP-Reuters)—The London Evening Standard today carried a report, credited to the periodical Paris published in Casablanca, that British commando troops landed on a well-guarded beach near Harfleur at the mouth of the Seine, where they overcame a German post and captured a six-barrelled mortar.

There was no confirmation of the report in London, where the general policy is to decline comment on reports of such operations. The Paris account did not mention the date of the raid, which may not have been recent.

A 29-year-old lieutenant-colonel was reported in the Paris account to have led the troops who got ashore without being detected during a dark and misty night.

PROFITABLE STUDY

The commandos cut their way through barbed wire on the beach and killed the German sentry when he gave the alarm, the report said. The main force then overwhelmed the mortar position, which had been studied on models and photographs before the expedition started.

The whole German crew was wiped out, but so speedy and silent was the attack that German forces nearby were unaware of it. The mortar was taken on board one of the British vessels and returned to Britain. The report said the only casualty reported was a man whose foot had been crushed while moving the mortar across the sand.

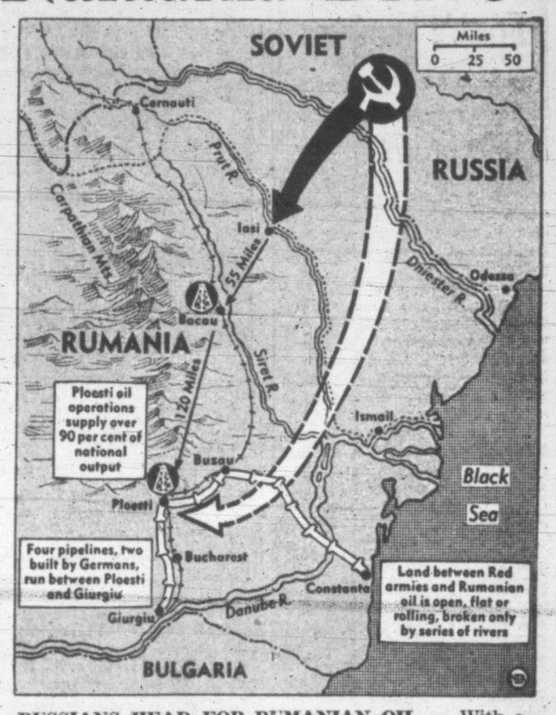
Russians Speed Rumania Drive



RUSSIANS HEAD FOR RUMANIAN OIL — With a Soviet army rolling westward from Odessa and another driving southwestward by way of Iasi, the threat to the Germans' great Ploesti and Bacau oil supply grows daily.

LONDON (AP) — Marshal Stalin announced in an order of the day the capture of Odessa, Russia's greatest Black Sea port.

Taking of the once-gay port, ruined in a two-months siege by the Germans and by 905 days of rigid occupation, was announced after the German high command had acknowledged its evacuation in one of Adolf Hitler's most humiliating defeats. The city had been in German hands since Oct. 18, 1941.

Stalin said the capture of the city, to which many had expected the Germans would cling stubbornly as a thorn in the side of the Red Army's Balkan advance, had cleared away a major obstacle to "the central regions of Rumania."

NAZIS SNEAKED AWAY

Putting the best possible light on a defeat which seemed to signal the German abandonment of the last mile of southern Russian territory and the opening of a crucial new Zazi stand in the Galati gap of Rumania between the Danube and Carpathians, the Germans said they stole away at night after blowing up all military installations and removing all ships and vehicle transport — a statement which seemed to indicate they had fled by sea in part.

Stalin said the city had been taken by outflanking manoeuvres by tanks, infantry and cavalry and frontal assault which caved in German defences and had threatened to cut off the Nazi garrison.

He ordered another great artillery display in Moscow to thunder out the word of the feat of Russian arms—24 salvoes from 324 guns — and a supplementary salute by 120 guns of the Black Sea Fleet which had thus regained a vital base in the western Black Sea for future operations.

DRIVE ON CRIMEA

Berlin told of a broad new Russian offensive in the Crimea which apparently was aimed at cleaning the enemy out of its one remaining important Black Sea outpost. The Germans said the Russians were smashing at their lines at Sivash and Perekop on the northern side of the isthmus. Russian war bulletins were silent on any new operations in that sector.

Cut off from all but sea communications, in the same way that the Odessa force was almost isolated, it seemed the Germans and Rumanians in the Crimea might be forced to yield the last of the strong Black Sea outposts guarding the Rumanian sea flank.

Nazis Have No Stomach for Siege

Odessa, only a little more than 20 miles inside the 1939 Russian border, was captured by the Germans 2½ years ago after a two-months' defence by besieged Russian soldiers, workers and marines who made their stand amidst the rubble and lagoons. The pre-war population of Odessa was 600,000.

It was the first of the dramatic sieges of Russian cities—Sevastopol, Leningrad and Stalingrad—that have marked the war.

It had been expected the Germans would make a similar death stand there in the current retreat.

RUSSIANS DROVE SWIFTLY

But the swift Russian advance struck down southwest of the city, almost slicing it off, and the Germans—by their own account—had no stomach for such a siege as the Russians endured.

Moscow declared that one Red Army column had smashed to a railway station three miles north of Odessa Sunday and that another, sweeping 11 miles southwest of the port, had seized Mariental, only five miles from the Odessa-Ovidiopol railway, the only retreat road for the thousands of Nazis and Rumanians defending the city.

The Russians were only eight miles from Ovidiopol itself, a bottleneck ferry terminus on this railway, and their guns commanded both the railway stretch and vulnerable ferry point.

Liberation of the strategic city, taken by the Germans at heavy cost in October, 1941, only four months after they had launched the invasion of Russia, came as other Soviet forces invading Rumania over-ran 200 more villages, and practically isolated the railhead of Iasi.

BIG FORCE THERE

Recent estimates placed the number of Germans and Rumanians in Odessa at 100,000 to 200,000.

The German broadcast claimed installations were destroyed last week, and that "all our war material was taken with us."

It claimed also that Germans trapped north of Razdelnaya, Russian-held town 45 miles northwest of Odessa, had pushed their way out, saying the "Russians have also unsuccessfully attempted to interfere with our disengagement movements" there.

Five or six broken German divisions were trapped in this sector, Moscow had announced, with 5,000 of them killed in two days.

CHICAGO (AP)—William Hale (Big Bill) Thompson, Chicago's three-time cowboy mayor who died March 19, apparently was an expert at corralling the "long green."

The Thompson estate, estimated at $148,000 when submitted to probate, now totals $1,840,000 in cash and bonds, exclusive of uncollected interest and stock in various enterprises. The cash and bonds were unearthed in safety deposit boxes.

Thompson's real estate holdings were said to total another $600,000, including a seven-story factory and a warehouse in Chicago and ranches in Canada and Nebraska.

White Pass 'Not Railroadin', But Ferris Wheeling'

U.S. army engineers filled in Kluane Lake to make this road, on one of the most spectacular stretches of the Alaskan highway.

Lee Dumphy, one of the Greyhound bus drivers, who has often been over the 1,500-mile stretch between Dawson Creek and Fairbanks.

There are numerous sign posts along the Alaska Highway. Here is a group of the most interesting, with bus passengers looking them over.

By J. K. NESBITT

There are many thousands of North Americans who have traveled the White Pass and Yukon Railway, that 110-mile strip between Skagway and Whitehorse.

They have traveled it in summer, while on tourist trips. There are comparatively few people who have been over the road in winter.

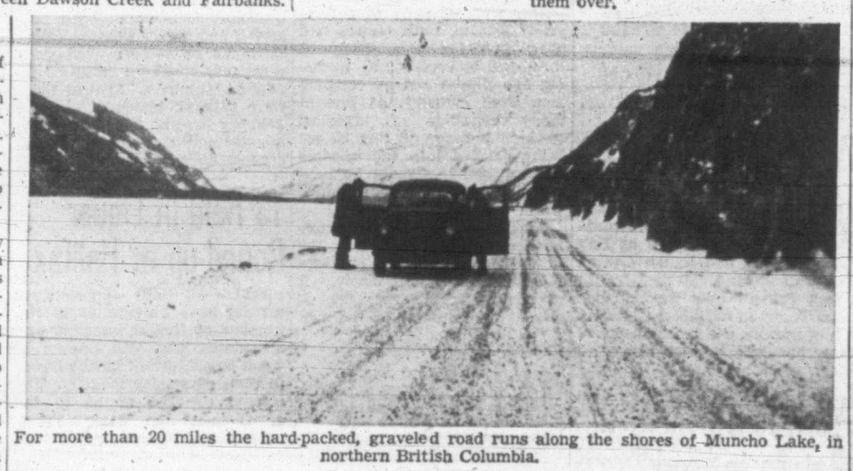
The famous railway is now part of the great northern system of transportation and ties in closely with the Alaska Military Highway. Much of the supplies for the road were shipped in over the railway. The United States army a few weeks ago took a party of western newspapermen north to see the transportation facilities of Alaska and the Yukon. A trip over the White Pass was to have been a highlight for the U.S. army is very proud of what its railroad battalion has done with this road.

So we thought we were going to be among the comparatively few people who have been over the road in winter. The trip started well enough, but there was just too much snow, so we didn't get very far.

The narrow-guage railway is now operated by the United States army. It staggers the imagination, the amount of freight that has been moved over this road in the last 18 months. There are many delays, locomotives jump the tracks, snow piles high—trains are hours late, but somehow or other they always get through. In other words, you know when you'll start, but there is no guarantee as to arrival time.

TRAINMEN FIGHT ALL THE WAY

That is how we got away. We were told we would start at 4 a.m. one day. We started—right on time. By 10.30 a.m. we had reached Lake Bennett, 70 miles south of Whitehorse. There we heard the trains in the famous White Pass were having trouble with snow. An engine was off the track, a portion of track was torn up. So at Bennett we waited and waited and waited and waited. By 6 p.m. we decided we had better return to Whitehorse, on the northbound train—if the northbound train ever got through the snow. It did—at 11 p.m. The people on that train had left Skagway at 9 in the morning—in other words they had come 40 miles in 14 hours. And the train crew had been fighting every inch of the way.



For more than 20 miles the hard-packed, graveled road runs along the shores of Muncho Lake, in northern British Columbia.

There was one coach on that train, and there were a lot of people. There was no light, except from a tiny oil lamp and the flames from the big coal-burning stoves in either end of the car. So we stranded newspaper people piled aboard, feeling in the way, for every seat was taken. Everyone was very friendly, as is the way of the north, and moved over and made room somehow. Some of us lay on baggage, some sat on the floor—and everyone talked, as we joggled along in a pitch-black coach, six hours through the night.

LIKE REFUGEE TRAIN

It was a ride I shall never forget. The whole thing reminded me something of what I had read of those refugee trains which used to cross the borders of Europe. There we were, more than 100 of us, in the dark, sleeping occasionally, swapping stories, hoping we would soon get there, but enjoying the novelty of it all. The air was thick with tobacco smoke. "Is it my turn to breathe, or yours?" asked one passenger of another.

Most railway presidents travel in private cars. But not Cliff Rogers, president of the White Pass and Yukon. Of all people, Mr. Rogers was on that crowded blacked-out midnight train and he was thoroughly enjoying himself. He was yarning about mines and pioneer days and oil and modern road development and railroading and the time he went to school in Victoria. And, when anyone grumbled about the slowness of the service, Mr. Rogers grinned (the grin couldn't be seen but it could be sensed) and said, "Well, you know, this railway is a very alfresco affair these days."

There were some good natured U.S. solders aboard and when we seemed parked in the middle of nowhere, in the middle of the night, one of them would come through the car and sing out "Mobile next stop, transfer to Birmingham."

And one young lieutenant, fresh from the Aleutians, on the train since early morning, drily announced, "This is the standingest-still train I've ever been on." Mr. Rogers laughed with the rest of us, for the responsibility is no longer his.

The service may be slow, but the U.S. Army has made it sure. The trains always get there, loaded with freight—great trucks, one to a flat car. They are the funniest looking trains you ever saw, with their odd assortment of freight, winding through the mountain passes.

"This ain't railroadin', this is ridin' a ferris wheel," said a husky ex-railroad man from Arkansas as he came into the station at Bennett after a hard ride up the pass.

We had been on a 40-mile train trip in 24 hours. We didn't get far, but far enough to be amazed at the amount of supplies that have gone over the narrow rails. This old road, built years ago for gold seekers, has been one of the lifelines in the defence of North America.

U.S. Flier Falls 19,000 Feet In Tail Of Broken Fortress; Cuts His Chin

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—A 27-year-old Kentucky farm youth told an amazing story today of falling 19,000 feet in the dismembered tail of a Flying Fortress which landed in a tree top—and thinking he was dead.

Surgeons said Sgt. A. Raley is little the worse for his experience, except for a cut on the chin. This is the story of the airman, as told from a hospital bed.

"It happened on my 13th mission. The navigator had just called out the altitude—19,500 feet. He was going into a fog bank. Then it came.

"There was a jolt. The plane seemed to stop. It shook all over with a terrific tearing sound and I found myself on my face. The ammunition case and a lot of broken parts were pinning me down. I thought it was all over because there was no chance to get out.

"Looking back I saw a B-17 going down with the wings in flame. It occurred to me that we had collided with it. All I was able to do was blink my eyes, but I realized we were going down at a terrific rate and that in a few minutes I would be dead.

"I thought the whole ship was intact by the way it was twisting around and the time it was taking us to get down. I was praying too.

CUSHIONED

"The impact when we struck the ground was cushioned, and there was a sloughing sound. I knew we had hit a tree. I got the idea I was a dead man. I didn't lose consciousness, but my eyes were closed for a few seconds."

Raley said it took considerable effort to free himself from several hundred rounds of ammunition which were resting on his neck.

"It was not until I had done this that I opened the bulkhead to climb out. I got the shock of my life. The tail section was the only part of the plane there. A part of the vertical fin was left and the right stabilizer was broken in half. The only part of the plane left besides that was behind the tail wheel—all told, about 12 feet."

Car Hits Tree After Wild Chase

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—A wild chase by a Vancouver motorist through city streets early today ended with the crash of a car into a tree and the recovery of a cash register containing $370 stolen from a confectionery store minutes earlier.

Masacar shouting for help when his store was held up and chased the car at a 60-mile-an-hour gait through the streets until it hit a post, jumped a boulevard and ended up against a tree. Roy K. F. Foster, 23-year-old boilermaker, Louis J. Vonneville, 21, seaman, and Vera M. McNeil, 23, were arrested. The men were held for questioning and the young woman as a material witness.

51,000 CANADIAN HOMES HAVE "GROWING PAINS"

In addition to the new houses that are likely to be bought or built, after the war ends, about 50,000 present houses are going to have new rooms added. And this is only one of innumerable home improvements affecting many Canadian families.

Is yours one of them? Have you actually made a post-war plan, figuring out costs? Have you considered seriously where the money is coming from? If not, here's a suggestion.

Hardly a day goes by that money isn't spent casually—dimes, quarters and half-dollars seem to melt away, leaving you nothing substantial in return. Why not make this money work for you?

Deposit it regularly, every week, in a savings account with The Huron & Erie. Just a few dollars set aside at interest this way will accumulate surprisingly. For instance, three dollars weekly in the course of a year become more than $150. Think how useful that amount or more will be, when you actually are able to buy the post-war things you want most!

Own things, don't owe for them. Start that savings account with The Huron & Erie, this very week!

Nazi Troops Near 5th Army Front Listen to Allied Easter Services

By The Canadian Press

The fifth Easter of history's bloodest war was celebrated Sunday and worshippers were told the world must look to the lesson of Easter to find consolation for its heavy burden of sacrifice and to find hope for true victory in the peace to come.

Spiritual leaders held forth the hope of rededication to the principles of democracy and Christian brotherhood as the shining promise of an Easter morning which found the United Nations poised and waiting for even greater and more devastating battles to come.

In Britain it was an Easter of rationing, discipline, high-pitched expectation and solemnity. Religious services which marked the observance there were duplicated in peaceful Canada and the U.S., scene also of fashion parades, egg hunts and family gatherings.

SERVICE IN HYDE PARK

At Garigliano on the Italian front, Allied and German troops—less than 400 yards apart—heard an Easter service. The Allied 5th Army's Protestant and Catholic services were broadcast to the Nazis who, within sight of the Allies' field altar, held their fire. The Easter story was read in English and German.

A chaplain's broadcast greeting to the enemy troops said in part: "Should not all Christendom be jubilant on this day?. . . Christ died and rose again for all men. . . Therefore I wish you also, on behalf of my soldiers, a happy Easter."

Communion wines and wafers and prayer books were parachuted to troops far behind Japanese lines in the jungles of Burma. In Palestine, where the story of the divine victory of the resurrection was first proclaimed, soldiers walked to Golgotha and the Holy Sepulchre.

In the United States thousands of Washington officials and visitors attended Easter sunrise services in Arlington National Cemetery. Despite rain early in the day, thousands thronged Fifth Avenue for New York's Easter parade.

Dull, rainy weather in Toronto and parts of western Ontario also failed to prevent thousands from attending special Easter services. In western Canada and Montreal the weather was bright.

Today's WAR NEWS Analysis

By DE WITT MACKENZIE

Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, in his statement on foreign policy, Sunday, said "it is hard to imagine a stable Europe if there is instability in its component parts, of which France is one of the most important.

Coincidentally in Algiers, there was intensification of the bitter quarrel for power between those two great Frenchmen, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, president of the French Committee of National Liberation, and Gen. Henri Giraud, commander-in-chief of the French army. Gen. de Gaulle ousted his colleague from the army command, an action which Gen. Giraud has refused to recognize. If Gen. de Gaulle makes it stick, it will give him both civil and military control.

An Associated Press dispatch from Algiers says Gen. de Gaulle's action was in effect a reassertion of his determination to force the Allies to deal with the committee as the sole provisional government for liberated France.

Now this imbroglio in Algiers is symptomatic of, though not necessarily related to, sharp divisions among the people of occupied France—a fact which is largely concealed from us by the Hitlerian cloak of military repression. Here we have the making of a major postwar problem for the Allies, and it may be one of the most dangerous they will have to handle.

The Third French Republic is dead, and we are on the verge of the rebirth of a great nation. That will not be accomplished without heavy travail.

The loyalist underground organization already has logged the names of a host of pro-Vichy Frenchmen who must stand trial for their lives on charges of treason. But it's a question whether in the heat of passion there will be any trials.

Thus we see the force of the reasoning in Secretary Hull's firm declaration that in order to drive the enemy from French territory "the supreme military commander (Gen. Eisenhower) must have unfettered authority." To this Mr. Hull adds what likely will be a bitter pill for Gen. de Gaulle personally to swallow—that the French Committee of National Liberation "is, of course, not the government of France, and we cannot recognize it as such." This is a direct answer to the general's efforts to obtain recognition of the committee as a provisional government.

Mr. Hull, however, does accord the liberation committee high recognition. In short, with poor France so shattered and disorganized, the only safe and sane course is to have Allied military control there in the early days of liberation.

U.S. Voters Want More Pressure on Eire on Axis Agents

PRINCETON, N.J. — A large majority of the American voters who have followed the note exchange between President Roosevelt and Eamon De Valera, Irish Free State head, would like to see this country take further steps to see that the German and Japanese diplomatic representatives in Ireland are ousted.

A nation-wide check-up by the Gallup Poll reveals furthermore that a majority of the first and second generation Irish-Americans throughout the country feel the same way, although the majority is somewhat smaller than is the case for all voters.

Confining the survey to the three out of every five in the voting population who say they have heard, or read, about the U.S. request that Axis representatives be removed from Eire to prevent the possibility of their using it as a listening post, field reporters for the Institute asked the following:

"Ireland has said that because she is neutral in this war she will not send the German and Japanese representatives home. Do you think the United States should do anything further about this?"

The results: Think U.S. should do something further, 66 per cent; think U.S. should do nothing further, 30 per cent; no opinion, 4 per cent.

STEPS SUGGESTED

The dominant group favoring further action by the United States say this country should use force, if necessary, to make Ireland get rid of Axis envoys.

In thus taking a stern attitude toward Eire, majorities, among the U.S. public, and the first and second generation Irish-Americans, are being consistent with their previously expressed views on Irish questions.

As far back as 1942, the Institute reported that no less than 90 per cent of the public, 72 per cent of the Irish-Americans, felt that Eire should cede use of strategic bases to the Allies in their fight against the submarine menace.

Moreover, at that time, seven in every 10 Americans, and more than five in every 10 Irish-Americans felt that Eire should throw off her neutrality and actively join in the war against the Axis.

Selective Service To Provide 98,000 For Forces in Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's armed forces require 98,000 men between now and next March 31, and National Selective Service officials are preparing to see the requirements are filled either through enlistments or by compulsory call-ups, it was indicated today.

Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service, told the Canadian Press enough men would be called to provide the army with 60,000 men, and that as a result of the call-ups it was hoped navy and air force requirements would be met.

NAVY AND AIR FORCE

The navy requires 12,000 men before March 31 next and the air force 26,000. These requirements will have to be filled by men who volunteer for service anywhere. The existing practice is to have call-up troops serve with the army only in Canada and adjacent territories.

The army needs 48,000 men for overseas service and 12,000 for home service. Overseas requirements will have to be filled by enlistments or by men who volunteered before or after being called up.

However, Defence Minister Ralston told the Commons this session that if a situation arose where the army needed more men overseas than enlistments provided, the use of call-up troops might be reconsidered. On the statute books of Parliament was a law that would permit the sending of mobilized troops anywhere.

Mr. MacNamara said that to meet requirements the forces could draw on the pool of men on deferments in war industries and on the 90,000 or more youths who will reach their 18½ birthday this year. Single men between the ages of 18½ and 38 and married men up to 30 years are subject to call.

DEFERMENT REQUESTS

No figures are available to show how many men now are on deferment, but a recent return tabled in the Commons showed that at last Dec. 31, about 238,277 requests for deferments had been received. The figure included requests for extensions of deferments.

Another tabled return said that from midway through 1940 to last Jan. 31, 979,569 men had been called for preliminary medical examinations. Of the number, 71,545 enlisted immediately, 433,453 were ordered to report for training, 220,765 reported and 117,752 requested deferments.

DOES YOUR CHILD Lack APPETITE?

Try New, Improved Ovaltine

If your child lacks a zest for food, it may be that his diet is short in very important food elements which, science has discovered, everyone needs for health. His growth may be stunted or impaired and he may be an easy victim to prevailing sickness.

As a "protecting" food-drink, New, Improved Ovaltine adds to a child's meals the essential food elements most likely to be deficient in his diet.

Three servings of New, Improved Ovaltine furnish a child with a significant portion of his daily requirement of Vitamins A, B_1, and D, and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron—also quick food-energy elements and high quality proteins—all for building sturdy bodies.

Enemy Forced To Scuttle 2 Ships

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Intercepted and attacked by British warships and naval aircraft, two large enemy supply ships were scuttled by their crews in the Indian Ocean, a British communique announced today.

The supply ships "probably were carrying very valuable cargoes consisting of oil or raw materials," said the communique, the first to be issued from the headquarters of the commander-in-chief of the British eastern fleet.

Survivors were rescued from one of the vessels. The communique did not specify the nationality of the supply ships.

Swift through the Night

THROUGH the silent spaces of the night it comes to you . . . First a murmuring hum — then the deep, full-throated roar of a thousand horses passing overhead — and swiftly the throbbing drone fades out beyond the dark horizon.

It may be a T.C.A. or C.P.A. plane winging its essential load of mail and passengers to where they're needed quickly. Perhaps that motor drumming through the dusky air is victory bound, with a cargo of fighting men.

It's one of the marvels of our age — this compact engine unit with the power of a thousand or more horses. Without it — and the modern lubricants that keep it flying — today's air speed and comfort and safety would be impossible.

Next time you hear that confident throb 'way overhead, remember that almost every airplane flying Canada's Skyways is lubricated completely or partially by aviation oils made in Imperial Oil refineries.

Night and day, from coast to coast, Imperial helps "keep 'em flying".

DEMANDS SOLID FOUNDATION

WHEN MR. CORDELL HULL, UNITED States Secretary of State, plainly implied in his broadcast speech yesterday that his country could not move in and out of international affairs just as nonchalantly and as easily as a man changes his suit, he was emphasizing a simple fact. He was doing more than this; he was drawing on the lessons of history to buttress his warning to all leaders of contemporary thought in the great Republic that a reversion to the policies of the early '20's would contribute to another world cataclysm a quarter of a century hence—by developing a state of mind which all potential disturbers of the peace would utilize for their sinister designs.

As a prime consideration for the lasting protection of the benefits which a United Nations victory should bestow on humanity, the veteran American statesman fervently pleads for a four-power foundation on which the more permanent structure must be erected if the peace is to be an enduring and stable one. As was to be expected, Mr. Hull would prepare for this essential long-term edifice by planting deeply four solid pillars whose chief component would be absolute mutual trust between his own country, the British Commonwealth, the Soviet Union, and China. This is the basic prerequisite—plus the convincing persuasion that the four powers concerned could at all times command for the purpose of enforcing the will of a chastened mankind—which the Secretary of State implores his countrymen to set as their mark. Should this objective be attained, moreover, the rest of the sovereign states of the world would find the necessary encouragement and co-operation for their own peaceful progress.

Perhaps the present is not the best time to try to assess the effect Mr. Hull's address will have on his compatriots. In many quarters, of course, it will be acclaimed with enthusiasm and confidence. To those who have no definite axe to grind, so far as their country's external relations are concerned, the fundamentals of the Secretary of State's plea and hope will be heartily endorsed. And even the relative few in this category who may prefer to marry domestic issues to international affairs in this year of internal political controversy surely can be counted upon to weigh the major issue with an understanding mind. The menacing shadow which no rhetoric can brush aside, however, is the constitutional procedure by which our neighbor decides her international commitments—the two-thirds majority by which the United States Senate, if it wills, can blast the hopes of the great mass of a people determined to permanize the next peace.

Whether Mr. Hull's address has satisfied the general public in respect of its rising demand for a clearer outline of American foreign policy, or whether it will prefer to await the results, for example, of yet another conclave of what is now known as the "Big Four," must remain for the moment purely conjectural. What is important for the United States, as well as for the rest of the United Nations, is that the Secretary of State has given a lead in a new consideration of the mode of procedure which inevitably must be pursued if the world is to profit by the horrible sacrifices which civilization already has made in its efforts to remove for all time the men and the systems which have produced international chaos.

THINK INSTEAD OF WORRY

ALTHOUGH HE DESCRIBED HIS VISIT as one to "look over the labor situation," Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, federal Minister of Labor, suggested in Halifax on Saturday that those concerned about postwar Canada should "stop worrying." His exhortation evidently derived from his personal conviction that the Dominion is organized "as it never has been before," in its war effort, and that this would be carried through with "plenty of work and fair wages for all."

We do not know if this bold and roseate vision of the future Canadian economy with which the minister regaled the people of Halifax was prefaced or followed by any qualifications. This is not to suggest that he was merely making a good fellow of himself, saying those things which come easy to the tongue and are pleasant to the ear. Even without the full text of Mr. Mitchell's observations in our possession, the public is entitled to assume that he knew whereof he spoke, and that the progress of events will reveal evidence to prove it.

None will doubt Mr. Mitchell's plain statement that the country is organized "as it never has been before"—organized for the application of its maximum effort for war and organized to meet the problems of the aftermath. For nearly two years a special committee of the House of Commons on Rehabilitation and Reconstruction, under the able chairmanship of Mr. J. G. Turgeon, has been in almost constant session hearing expert testimony on the myriad aspects of urban and rural industry and how its reconversion from a wartime to a peacetime economy can best be effected—to produce the "plenty of work and fair wages for all" which Mr. Mitchell so confidently envisages.

A good deal of anticipatory legislation already has reached the federal statute books and the machinery essential to give it practical effect is in readiness. In the provincial realm, British Columbia set the pace with the Perry Report, while others have followed suit and obviously are leaving nothing to chance.

We may assume, therefore, that when Mr. Mitchell told the people of Halifax to "stop worrying" he had in mind the rising chorus from the traditional "crepe hangers"—that element which wastes its time in trying to find something to grumble about instead of exercising what imagination and initiative it may possess for the benefit of the common weal. For, after all, governments can do so much and no more; they are the servants of the people. And if the nation tolerates more drones than "working bees" there will naturally be something for the "whispers-of-death" brigade to crow about in the postwar era.

JAMES H. FLETCHER

ALTHOUGH HE HAD NOT QUITE traveled the Psalmist's allotted span of three score years and ten—he was 69 when he passed to his last rest on Saturday after a long illness—James H. Fletcher had lived a full life. It was a full life in that he understood the responsibilities of citizenship and discharged them with a meticulous regard for the welfare of his fellows. It was a full life in that he was the solid family man—a man of high principles.

Success in business, for which his early training had abundantly equipped him, broadened his concept of the humanities and won for him a place of influence in the community's commercial structure. Sterling integrity, unfailing courtesy, and good fellowship were the keys which admitted him to a great company of staunch friends—in service clubs, in his church, and in the Masonic Order. It can be truthfully said of "Jim" Fletcher, too, that he had a wholesome abhorrence of sham and tinsel. It was because he possessed these fine qualities of mind and heart that his death will be so genuinely mourned by all who knew him.

NOW ODESSA!

DESPITE THE FACT THAT MOSCOW has had much to celebrate since the great Russian offensive began to gather its momentum last July, it can be taken for granted that Marshal Stalin will give his artillery pieces in Moscow a special issue of blank shells tonight. For is not the great Black Sea port of Odessa back in the hands of its rightful owners after more than two and a half years in the grip of the despoilers? How much material and how many disillusioned Germans will never see the Reich again in consequence of today's great victory we may learn before the war is much older. No doubt large numbers of the Wehrmacht's personnel have succeeded in "detaching" themselves from the danger zone since it became obvious that their stronghold of Odessa was doomed.

But the significance of this day's triumph does not begin and end in terms of purely victorious military operations, vast as their strategic importance obviously is, this latest impressive manifestation of our valiant ally's westward progress must have a most depressing psychological effect on the German people. Not that there is any indication of a break in morale, either on the battlelines or on the domestic front. But as the day of the invasion from the Atlantic seaboard nears, and Marshal Stalin's men deepen their hold in the east, much may happen even to a Gestapo-dominated "Herrenvolk." They know Hitler has lost his battle with Russia.

THIS ASININE CENTURY

ONE SENTENCE WHICH THE REV. George Biddle included in his address to the Lions Club the other day should be memorized by every timid individual who thinks his voice is unimportant, and that nothing he says or does will have the least influence on those whose acts help to shape the world's destiny. Here is the sentence:

"I suppose our century will go down as the most asinine in history, as man is using his brain creating things that exterminate him."

The truth of that statement cannot be gainsaid. It castigates us all; we are all fools, hopeless fools, unless we compel our governments—all governments—to adopt policies that will prevent further war. Easier said than done, we can hear somebody saying; but is it? It certainly will not be done unless we change our way of life, our way of thinking, our way of discharging our responsibilities. One of the prerequisites is within reach of every adult Canadian—the opportunity for public service, plenty of it.

It is not given to all to be members of boards of trade, municipal governments, legislatures and parliaments. Many may be called; normal processes decide the few who will be chosen; but there is a large hole in the life of the nation—any democratic nation—literally shrieking to be filled with a large amount of well-ordered, progressive human public opinion. To be sure, before the job of filling it can be begun a good deal of mental apathy will have to abdicate in favor of a revived mental energy.

We shall be told that it is no use one nation getting all excited about this century's asininity; nobody suggests anything of the kind. But if all the peoples of the whole world made up their minds that they would not permit a few men to make rods for two billions of human backs, the infinitesimal few who would "sell out to the highest bidder" for personal aggrandizement would soon skedaddle to the tall timbers.

War refugees in Uganda, British East Africa, have swelled the population to nearly six times the protectorate's prewar European size.

TRAIL OF THE CARTELS

IN A SPECIAL supplement the New Republic traces the trail of the great cartels across the economic system of the world. The evils of this system—an extension of the domestic monopoly into world trade—are now well known. The problem is not to secure evidence against it but to find means to cure it. The New Republic does not believe that any simple means, any single form of attack, will suffice. Instead, it proposes an attack from many directions, by the action of individual nations and by all the democratic nations jointly.

The cartel, it is pointed out, cannot operate directly in any country where monopolies cannot control the domestic market. If competition exists within a country the world cartel cannot hold up prices there. The first attack on the cartel, therefore, must be an attack on domestic monopolies of all sorts and every government is able to launch such an attack without the co-operation of other countries.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S N.R.A.

THE UNITED STATES had its era of "trust busting" before the last war, but afterwards monopolies grew with little interference from either political party. Indeed, the first great and futile experiment of Mr. Roosevelt's New Deal was the N.R.A., which permitted and encouraged business groups to control prices without regard to cost or competition. Happily the Supreme Court found the statute covering this process invalid. As part of its general change of philosophy, the Roosevelt government is now preparing the most concerted attack on monopolies witnessed since the first Roosevelt.

The New Republic does not think that the existing anti-trust laws are powerful enough to curb monopolies and it suggests that all companies engaged in international or even interstate trade should be compelled to secure charters from the federal government. These charters could be canceled by a federal commission if a company persistently restricted production to hold up prices. Since the misuse of patents is one of the chief weapons of the monopolies and cartels, a revision of the patent laws is suggested. On this the New Republic is rather vague, but it believes that in some way the incentive to invention can be retained while the law prevents the buying up of patents to prevent the full use of inventions.

'YARDSTICKS' IN COMPETITION

FINALLY THE NEW Republic urges the government to retain some of its wartime plants and operate them as "yardsticks" in competition with private plants; and also to set up national planning machinery to do the job of "rationalizing production which the monopolists now claim to be doing. This looks very much like establishing one big state control to replace a variety of private control.

However, it is admitted that all these purely domestic measures will not smash the international controls which are outside the scope of any single nation. Yet all nations are affected by them, since all nations must import certain goods. If these goods are controlled by an international cartel, the importing nation, whatever its own anti-monopoly laws, must pay the cartel price. Canada is paying it today on some vital imports.

The international cartel, therefore, can be tackled only by international action by nations which are determined to smash the cartel. The New Republic, usually considered a strong sympathiser with socialism, urges an approach to this problem which is liberal, which is calculated to support private enterprise and which is in consonance with the world reconstruction plans of the United Nations. It would set up an international agency to guarantee "freedom of access to raw materials" as advocated in the Atlantic Charter. Such an agency would parallel the UNRRA organization, the international agreement on nutrition, the proposed currency organization and the projected international peace enforcement organization.

NO EASY TASK

SINCE THERE IS no international government with sovereign powers to enforce international laws, it will not be easy by international agreement to abolish cartels, the New Republic admits, but "by international agreement we can create an agency which can investigate and give publicity to any combination which fixes prices or limits output, and by the same means we can investigate and give publicity to any combination which fixes prices or limits output, and by the same means we can in many cases provide representation for the individual consumers or for consuming nations in such decisions."

The New Republic goes further, trenching on ground which is highly debatable. It suggests that besides publishing the facts of cartel operations and revealing their effect on supply and prices, an international organization could take positive action to compete with the cartels. This would be done, it is suggested, through the international lending and investment bank already proposed by the United States and under active consideration by the United Nations. Such a bank could assure the development of resources to compete with the resources now controlled by cartels, and thus, the New Republic believes, could break world monopolies. The direct intervention of an international organization into this field might well bring with it more harm than good.

The British Army has fought in almost every corner of the globe—Norway, France, Holland, Belgium, Egypt, Eritrea, Abyssinia, Somaliland, Madagascar, Syria, North Africa, Persia, Sicily, Italy, Greece, Crete, Malaya, Burma and Kongkong.

Trans-Canada's Record

This is one of a series of articles written for the Victoria Daily Times by Mr. Grant Dexter, well-known Canadian journalist, on the subject of the Dominion's air policy.

By GRANT DEXTER

OTTAWA—In the setting of Canadian conditions, the record of Trans-Canada Air Lines is of special interest. The purpose of Parliament in passing the act of 1937 was to provide a first class air line service at the lowest possible cost to the public.

The international phase of this policy is not yet developed to the point where comment is warranted. Trans-Canada has been declared the "chosen instrument" of Canada for international operations but—excepting U.S.-Canadian runs—the future is still obscure. It will depend largely on the kind of competition which will have to be faced. It has been assumed, perhaps too readily, that Trans-Canada will develop its own international services east and west. It is possible, however, that it may become essential for Trans-Canada to join with U.S. lines on the Far East service or with the United Kingdom on the Atlantic route.

The tendency is to concentrate on single services. At Washington a consolidation of all U.S. air Lines into one international flying corporation is now being advocated. If the U.S. decides that all its air traffic must be funnelled into a single international service—always excepting U.S.-Canadian runs—then Trans-Canada for competitive reasons might have to go into a larger unit. The draft convention proposed by the Canadian government gives freedom of choice in this regard, but the first preference undoubtedly will go to a purely national service, east and west.

VICTORIA TO HALIFAX

Trans-Canada now operates from Halifax to Victoria with the trans-Atlantic run branching off via Newfoundland or Labrador. There is a branch line from Toronto New York and an improved route is projected from Toronto across the Great Lakes to Port Arthur and thence to Winnipeg. From Winnipeg a second main line is projected through Saskatoon, Edmonton and northwest to Alaska. This is the future international line to the Far East.

Thus Trans-Canada presents the figure of two Y's with their ends jointed together. The stem of this figure is the line from Toronto to Winnipeg. In this way Trans-Canada will be able to carry on two main line services, leading to Europe and the Far East, with the utmost economy in shops, staff and overhead.

The international line from New York to Vancouver is reputed to be easily the most direct transcontinental route, and it is already offering strong competition to the U.S. lines. The New York, Toronto, Winnipeg, Alaska route is also strongly favored as the most direct and efficient line to the Far East. How this Far Eastern service will be developed is uncertain, but that it will be highly competitive goes without saying.

AIR MAIL SUBSIDY

Trans-Canada was created by statute to be a publicly-owned company which could never make large profits and never become bankrupt. To this end, the statute provided that at the close of each year the air mail subsidy should be recalculated. If Trans-Canada made a surplus, one half of this surplus would go to reduce the air mail subsidy in the ensuing year! If a loss, one-half of the loss would be taken up in the ensuing year by an increase in the subsidy.

This arrangement has worked out to the advantage of the public. In the beginning an air mail subsidy of 60 cents per flown mile was paid. Trans-Canada made money and the subsidy was reduced. It fell to 48 cents in 1941; 45 cents in 1942, and 42 cents in 1943. Mail revenue amounted to 80 per cent of total revenue in 1939; 62 per cent in 1940; 53 per cent in 1941; 44 per cent in 1942, and 37 per cent in 1943.

This sliding scale on surpluses has operated to prevent Trans-Canada from piling up profits. In 1941 the company did a business of $5,807,000 and showed a surplus to $494,915; in 1943 business increased to $7,337,000 and surplusto $494,915; in 1943 business rose to $9,379,000, but the surplus fell to $147,889. If there had been no reduction in the air mail subsidy in 1943, the revenue would have been greater by $5,000,000. The company actaully carried 61 per cent more air mail for 9 per cent more revenue.

It is urged that if there was a competitive transcontinental service, the advantage of concentrated traffic would be lessened and substantial savings of this order would be impossible.

Thus, while the public expenditures required by air services are a factor in the case for a monopoly of main line runs, the basic argument is that there is not sufficient air traffic available in Canada to support two first class, competing, main line operations.

A contrast between Trans-Canada and the National railways shows that while the air line did $9,000,000 of business in 1943, the National did $440,000,000. The Trans-Canada carried 140,000 passengers, the National 60,000,000. Both could have done still greater business had they possessed the equipment and the personnel to operate it. The ratio of air to rail business cannot be greater than slightly more than 1 per cent. Even truck services, at their peak only did 15 per cent as much business as the railways. The greater part of railway business, and easily the most profitable part, is in bulk goods which never will move by air.

FOOD OR DRUG?

From Toronto Financial Post

Is a vitamin a food or a chemical? The answer to that question is of great importance to grocers and druggists, since on it will depend which group of retailers will sell this increasingly important and profitable line of merchandise. Wartime scarcities of goods of all kinds for retailers to handle further intensifies an already major problem.

If it is decided that vitamin concentrates are a food, they can be sold in grocery stores; and their sale is limited only by the Dominion Food and Drug Act.

If they are a drug, however, they come into the orbit of the Provincial Pharmacy Acts, which could be construed to prohibit their sale except in the drug-stores.

Right now, the situation is frozen by W.P.T.B. order No. 284, prohibiting expansion and new lines, but plans are being made for action in the future, and both drug and grocery men wonder what the status of the vitamin will be.

Canadians Describe Hits in French Area

LONDON (CP)—Among the R.C.A.F. squadrons which took part in the Sunday night raid on Villeneuve—St. Georges rail junction a short distance south of Paris, were the Ghost Squadron flight commanded by Sqdn. Ldrs. Frank McGuigan, Weyburn Sask., and W. A. McLeish, Hamilton, Ont., Sqdn. Ldr. F. H. Watkins, Edmonton, made his first sortie as a flight commander of the Bluenose Squadron.

WO. Gil Riger, Regina, reported little opposition. There was a slight amount of anti-aircraft fire, but he saw neither searchlights nor fighters.

"I saw our bombs burst smack on the yards right in the centre of the target indicators," said Sgt. Bill Cunningham, Oyen, Alta., another airman on the Villeneuve-St. Georges raid. "It was as clear as daylight and the target was certainly well marked."

Other airmen on the attack included Flt. Lt. H. E. McIver, Meadow Lake, Sask.; and FO. Nelson Smith, Major, Sask.

"We were just making our bombing run when a terrific explosion came up from the target," said PO. J. D. Quinn, Toronto, a Goose Squadron pilot. "A great mass of flames spread all over the place."

"We could see smoke 1,000 feet over the clouds," said Sgt. D. F. Weeks, Nanitowaing, Man., A Goose Squadron bomb aimer. "It was dirty brownish black."

Weeks estimated the clouds were as high as 8,000 feet.

PO. Joe Vallee, Vancouver, a Ghost squadron leader, thought either oil or gasoline cars were hit by one bomb and said "the whole thing just sort of blew up."

Kudzu, known also as porch vine, a fast-growing, long-lived, perennial legume, makes good pasturage, hay or ensilage, and in addition improves the soil and prevents erosion; some 250,000 acres of it are now grown in the United States.

Gideons' Sunrise Service At Beacon Hill

In the face of a brilliant rising sun, hundreds of Victorians gathered in Beacon Hill Park Easter Sunday morning for a service conducted by the Victoria camp of the Gideons.

In a perfect setting of rocky shelves, with a glorious rising sun shining in their faces, a large crowd gathered Easter Sunday morning at 7.45 for the sunrise service arranged by the Victoria camp of the Gideons in Beacon Hill Park.

The Salvation Army band played Easter hymns as the worshippers walked through the dewy grass of the park, passed the daffodil beds and the broom, to the rocky knoll where, in a natural theatre, the service was held. A stand had been erected for pulpit and band and the service was brought to people in the distance, sitting on rocks, beneath oaks just bursting into bloom, by loudspeakers.

GIDEON GREETING

The service opened with a trumpet call and a doxology, after which D. A. Burden, president of the local Gideon camp, conveyed Gideon greetings to the gathering. Mr. Burden prayed for a lasting blessing as the result of the service.

Rev. Percy E. Wills, of the Shantymen's Christian Association, recited the Lord's Prayer and Invocation. "May all those things of sham and hypocrisy be taken from us, that we may be more pleasing in Thy sight," he prayed.

George Parsons conducted responsive reading of Psalm 24—"the Lord of hosts, He is the King of Glory." Harry Mackenzie read the Scripture from John. Congregational hymns were "Christ the Lord is Risen Today," "Low in the Grave He Lay," and "Jesus, keep me near the Cross." The pleasant voices of Mrs. R. H. Nash, who sang O'Connor-Morris' "A Joyous Easter Hymn," and A. S. Stringer, who interpreted Maude Craske Day's "Arise, O, Sun," carried across the park in the calm morning haze. Jack I. Smith was at the portable organ. Prayers were said by Maj. Roy McCaughey, of the Salvation Army and the benediction was asked by J. H. Tabor.

"THE RISEN CHRIST"

Frank Hunter, secretary of the Gideons' Victoria camp, made the announcements and introduced the speaker, Rev. Bob Munro, a Scottish evangelist, whose Easter message was "The Risen Christ." Eloquently, he retold the ageless story of Easter, from the Good Friday agony to the glorious resurrection. Particularly he stressed the story of Mary Magdalene and saw in her actions hope for all sinners.

"The resurrection of Christ is one of the best authenticated human facts in history," Mr. Munro said. "He proved himself alive in many undeniable ways—when we make the Lord Jesus Christ the subject of our conversation He will always grace the company with His presence. He will come and abide with you in the dark—may God give to you and me a burning heart, because He is living there, and swift feet to go and tell to others the story—God has not left us to grope in the dark—He is risen."

Maj. Allan McInnes of the Salvation Army was leader of the congregational hymn singing. Following the service several sailors, soldiers and airmen, and women of the services received Gideon testaments. No collection was taken, but boxes were available for free-will offerings to help pay expenses of the service. The Gideon objective was explained, as follows: "To place the Bible—God's word—in every hotel room, beside every hospital cot, in every prison cell and every schoolroom, and present a Testament to every man and woman in H.M. services, who has not received one from other sources."

GIDEONS' DISPLAY—A window display of the Victoria Camp of Gideons showing copies of the Bible similar to those placed in the armed forces quarters, hotel rooms, jails and other establishments throughout many parts of the world. The window space was donated by David Spencer Ltd.

Judge's Order Keeps 'Em Rolling

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Federal Judge L. Leroy Adair entered an order today assuring distribution of 237,000 barrels of American Distilling Company whisky to stockholders of the company at cost price.

His order enjoined any stockholder from interfering with administration of the unusual plan of Gilbert B. Geiger, trustee of the company, to distribute its huge stock of whisky, estimated as the fifth largest stock in the country and stored mostly in the firm's principal plant at Pekin, Illinois.

The order also restrained anyone from bringing suit against validity of the trust indenture which provides for the distribution plan.

London's newest hat fashion has been set by Princess Elizabeth with a creation based on an officer's service cap.

One reason for its popularity is that so many women engaged in war work find it kinder to short hair and bare necks. It sells for 12 shillings six pence (about $2.75) to £1 7s 6d.

Accent On Spring At Dinner Dance

The Easter holiday spirit pervaded the Crystal ballroom of the Empress Hotel Saturday night when hundreds of party-minded dancers revelled to the melodies of "Billy" Tickle and his orchestra. A veritable Easter parade of new clothes was evident as summery prints begin to predominate over the more formal winter gowns. Many spring-flower topknots, too, indicated the summer trend with the new American vogue of a black velvet bandeau in the hair also in evidence. Miss Brenda Woodward favored the latter fashion fancy, with diamante accents on her attractive hairdo. She was escorted by PO. David Duncan.

A large naval party present included Miss Eve Barrie with Lieut. Kevin Power, Miss Barbara Diether with Sub-Lt. Duncan Thomson, Lieut. and Mrs. Gage Love, Miss Joan Thompson and Lieut. W. Gaudette, Lieut. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Miss Rosanna Gillespie and Sub-Lt. David Hutchings, Miss Marcia Aitkens and Sub-Lt. William Jolley . . . Miss Audrey Priddle was escorted by Maj. Morrison, while Miss Jill German was noted dancing with Lieut. J. Castonguay.

A sophisticated dress of scarlet and black was worn by Miss Virginia Ryan, who with Mr. Victor Mott, was at a table which included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, visiting from Vancouver, and Sub-Lt. E. Latimer. . . . Among twosomes present were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Eve, Mr. and Mrs. George Cosler, Lieut. Bob Gale with Miss Mary Duncan, Capt. and Mrs. Arthur Roberts, who are on leave from Prince Rupert, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. E. Pitkethley, Mr. and Mrs. George Wheaton, Maj. and Mrs. Cyril Oldham and Lieut. and Mrs. D. Miller.

Capt. and Mrs. G. I. Edgelow shared a table with Mr. and Mrs. R. D. McCullough, the latter very attractive wearing pea-green with matching turban on her auburn hair. . . . The new deep purple was chosen by Mrs. G. Grant for her dressmaker suit and Dutch hat . . . she with her husband, Surg. Lt.-Cmdr. G. Grant in a naval party composed of Surg. Lt-Cmdr. R. Marshalls, R.N., Mrs. Lynan Williams, Surg. Lieut. J. Burns and Mrs. H. Ruttan.

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. N. Jackson, 2650 Graham Street, announce the engagement of their younger daughter, Hazel Alice, to Tel. (S.O.) William John Snider, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Snider, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. The wedding will take place in the latter part of April.

The engagement is announced of Leona Elizabeth, only daughter of Mrs. A. Simpson, 969 Easter Road, and the late Wm. Scott Simpson, to George R. Crowther, youngest son of Mrs. M. Crowther, 423 Boleskine Road, and the late Thomas Crowther. The wedding will take place Saturday, April 22, 1944.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

Dorothy Dix

PHILANDERING WIVES

Dear Miss Dix—My son is in the army overseas. He is desperately in love with his wife, but in his absence she is running around with other men, both soldiers and civilians, from whom she accepts presents and money. She has told me that she is going to separate from my son as he did not come up to her expectations. What should I do about the matter? I don't want to cause trouble between my son and his wife, yet I feel that he should know of her conduct.

WORRIED MOTHER.

Answer—This problem of the philandering wife is one that is brought to my attention every day, for it seems that there are many women who are taking advantage of their husbands' absence to have a fling. Some of these women are rakes by nature and doubtless always had their extra marital affairs.

But many others of them are not deliberately immoral. They are just poor, weak, pleasure-loving women who have not the strength to resist temptation, and when the chance came to have some fun, to have men make love to them and give them presents, they shut their eyes to the consequences and started down the primrose path.

Of course, the natural response of a man's family and friends is to tell him of his wife's conduct. It burns them up to see her double-crossing him, befooling him, making him the subject of pity for those who love him and a jest for the ribald-minded, and they feel that they should warn him of how he is being mistreated.

But inasmuch as he is helpless to correct the situation, why add to his miseries by telling him that which is bitterer than death to him? Why not let him live as long as he can in his faith in his wife? Surely a man who is enduring all the hardships of war and who is facing death and danger needs to have nothing else added to his troubles.

Real Help On the Farm

Lorraine Beddoes . . . farmer at 10.

These are busy days on Vancouver Island farms and lucky indeed are the farmers who have willing youngsters to help them with the chores.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Beddoes of Cobble Hill say their 10-year-old daughter, Lorraine, is as good as any hired man. She has always lived on a farm, and she has a great love for animals.

Pretty Lorraine can milk like a veteran and it is interesting to note that the cow whose milk she was fed as an infant in Vernon was the one she learned to milk at five years. She can milk three cows if necessary and when the herd, which numbers 20, needs changing from pasture to pasture, she handles the job.

Lorraine is now preparing her cattle for the fall fair at Cobble Hill, where she did so well last year, winning several prizes and handling her cattle in astonishing style for one so young.

THE Home Nurse

SUGGESTIONS FOR CARE OF PATIENT'S HAIR AND SCALP

By MARY BEARD
Director, Nursing Service, Red Cross

For NEA Service

The scalp of a person confined to bed for a long time becomes uncomfortable and requires cleaning. A soap and water shampoo is the ideal treatment, but it may involve too much risk of chilling or tiring the patient, and if not skilfully given there is danger of getting the bed wet.

Bay rum dries quickly, allays itching and is refreshing. The home nurse may use it as follows to clean the patient's scalp:

Put a supply of the bay rum in a small dish and have cotton pledgets or a small clean cloth convenient for applying it. Two towels should be used, one for covering the pillow, the other for protecting the upper bed covers. Wash your hands before beginning the treatment. You may find it more convenient to stand while giving it.

BRUSH OUT TANGLES

Turn the patient's head on one side and part the hair. Dip the piece of cotton or cloth into the bay rum and rub the scalp down the central part, massaging it gently. Make another part a short distance from the central line and apply the solution in the same way. Continue to part and cleanse until one entire side has been covered. Repeat the procedure on the other side. Alternate brushing and rubbing with the fingers should be continued until the scalp and hair are dry.

In combing long hair, first protect the pillow, or shoulders, with a towel. Part the hair in the middle, from the forehead to the nape of the neck, and draw it to either side. Using a brush will help to remove tangles. Separate the hair into small strands and take a strand at a time, holding it firmly between the head and the comb, to protect the head from sudden jerks when a tangle is reached. When combing is finishing plait the hair in two braids. If the hair is heavy or badly tangled, the patient may be too tired to have it all combed at one time. In this case, braid the part that has been combed, and complete the work later.

It is desirable to brush or comb the hair at least twice a day unless the doctor advises otherwise.

Pig iron production began with the New Year in the government's new plant near Provo, Utah, using ore mined near Cedar City and coke from coal from a newly developed mine in southeast Utah.

A blast furnace at Oxford, N.J., built in 1742 and operated until 1882, furnished iron for use in the French and Indian War, which began in 1754, and in the American Civil War; the original structures are still standing.

MYRA HESS INSPIRES 1,000 BRITISH CONCERTS

Dame Myra Hess, world renowned pianist, has, through her inspired courage and belief in the incalculable power of music as a source of moral strength, made possible hundreds of recitals of concert calibre to the people of Britain for the mere sum of 25 cents each.

These performances, which have been given time and again right on schedule, despite heavy bombings, and even on occasion when the National Gallery itself (in which the recitals are given) was shattered by a heavy raid, are the tangible expression of a dream. The pianist, writing to John Beckwith of Victoria, himself an aspiring concert soloist, said:

"I think we are all proving that music is one of the great forces in the world, and it is reaching thousands of people now in a way I had always dreamed of, and that the extraordinary conditions of these tragic times have made possible.

"The war news is so encouraging now that perhaps it may not be too long before I can cross the water again and come even as far as Victoria!" she concludes.

Enclosed in the sincere and friendly letter to the Victoria boy is a program marking the thousandth concert in the National Gallery. The program costs "one penny"—two cents!

Obviously with such nominal admission entrance charges, money is needed, and from America's hundreds of small communities donations have crossed the Atlantic—proof of the love and admiration won by Myra Hess during her stay here before the war.

VICTORIA HELPS, TOO

Victoria, too, is contributing to the "Myra Hess Fund," and on April 13 the Intermediate Group of the Victoria Musical Art Society and the Victoria Junior Symphony are collaborating in recital, object of which is to secure funds to send over in support of the magnificent work being done in Britain.

Victoria artists who are contributing to the program of voice, violin, piano and symphony at the Victoria High School auditorium are Pamela Terry, John Beckwith, Marie Vowles Gwen Woolcock, Robin Wood, Rita Nevard, Elizabeth Angus, Winnifred Applegate and Melvin Knudsen conducting the Junior Orchestra.

Court officers installed were: Ethel H. Brown, Queen; Eva I. Warren, Junior Past Queen; Edna Davies, Princess Royal; Sadie Hood, Princess Tirzah; Grace Addema, Princess Bodowa; Jessie H. Queen Brown presented J.P.Q. Warren with a gift from the Temple, and P.Q. Jessie Smith gave the past queen's jewel to J.P.Q. Eva Warren, who also received a gift from the officers, the presentation being made by Princess Royal Edna Davies.

Edward Williams, potentate of Gizeh Temple, in a reply to an address of welcome by the newly-elected queen, offered congratulations to her.

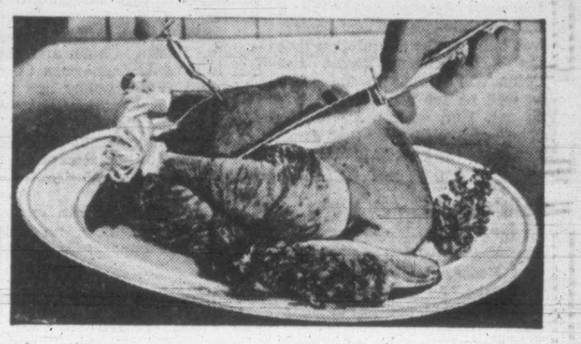
SWIFT'S WEEKLY FOOD HINTS

Martha Logan, Swift's famed home economist, whose weekly, wartime cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints each Monday

by Martha Logan

Carving a Roast Bird



For a chicken, as with other roasts, good carving is vital to avoid waste!

The first essential for carving poultry is the same as any other meat—a sharp knife! If you have a special poultry knife (one with a thinner blade than the ordinary carver) so much the better. But any carving knife will serve if it is really sharp.

First insert the fork firmly with a prong on each side of the breast bone. Next, make a downward cut between the body and the thigh nearest you, twisting the knife to separate the leg from the body and expose the joint, which can then easily be severed.

Still keeping the fork in place, remove the wing. You are now ready to slice the breast and in a large bird, to cut slices from the thigh. For an ordinary family meal, you will now probably have enough meat carved to supply portions for everyone. The normal portion should include some light, some dark meat and dressing. The other side of the bird is treated in the same way as required. The wishbone may be included in first or second portions.

New Circus Toys To Be Displayed

A display of new circus toys in the window of David Spencer Ltd., for the week commencing May 15 will be part of the forthcoming membership drive of the B.C. Toys Club. This circus will later be sent to the Plymouth Hospital in England for the convalescent children.

Schools of Greater Victoria have made a great number of little guns, jeeps and tanks which will be given by the club to blind children. The Oak Bay Bowling Green Club has sent more than 30 large stuffed toys.

Mrs. Charles Flight, president, has received a letter from Miss Dorothy Lane, matron of the Great Ormond Street Hospital in London, telling of the appearance in the London Illustrated News on Feb. 12 of a picture of the circus in the Goldsmith Ward. Letters were also received from the Mayor and Mayoress of Southampton thanking the club for the 278 ditty bags received.

Hull Pleads for 'Organized Peace' Urges Political Unity In U.S.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cordell Hull, fighting for a postwar policy of international collaboration in "organized peace," has appealed to the American people not to let the controversies of an election year create disunity and destroy their effectiveness in world affairs.

"Once before in our lifetime," he said in a broadcast discussion of foreign policy, "we fell into disunity and became ineffective in world affairs by reason of it. Should this happen again, it will be a tragedy to you and to your children and to the world for generations."

His foreign policy summation, the most detailed made by a U.S. official since the war started, was built on the assumption that the U.S., Britain, Russia and China will co-operate for peace as well as for war and if they do not, Hull said, there is "no hope" of avoiding another great conflict in the next 20 to 25 years.

No Secret Pacts Political, Financial

Hull's address, Sunday night, assured that neither he nor President Roosevelt "have made nor will make any secret agreement, or commitment, political or financial."

In a specific discussion of pending problems, evidently prompted by criticism the U.S. lacks a detailed policy, the Secretary made these main points:

1. France—The U.S. expects the French Committee of National Liberation (De Gaulle) to be given every opportunity to organize the civil government of France under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's supervision, but "the committee is, of course, not the government of France and we can not recognize it as such."

This was the first formal announcement by an American official of the U.S. French policy since President Roosevelt finally decided it and notified Britain three weeks ago.

2. Italy—The U.S. government sees a "promise of success" in current political activities seeking to broaden the base of the Italian government of Premier Badoglio. Hull said frankly "we had hoped that before this enough of Italy would have been freed so that we might have had at least a preliminary expression" of the will of the Italian people on their government.

WANT SUPPLIES ENDED

3. Neutral countries—The U.S. and its Allies are insistently asking these countries "to cease aiding our enemy."

Neutrals no longer need fear Germany will win the war and are, therefore, no longer faced with the need to compromise between Germany and the Allies. Hull mentioned no country specifically, but left no doubt he had reference to every neutral on the rim of Europe — Sweden, Eire, Spain, Portugal and Turkey — when he declared that "we can no longer acquiesce in these nations drawing upon the resources of the Allied world when they at the same time contribute to the death of troops whose sacrifice contributes to their salvation as well as ours."

4. Military — Allied strength "has now grown to the point where we are on the verge of great events . . . we await their development with absolute confidence."

5. Allies—Co-operation among Britain, Russia, China and the U.S. is a "solid framework upon which all future policy and international organization must be built."

6. The enemy — Hull declared "there can be no compromise with Fascism and Nazism. It must go everywhere." He added that enemy leaders can expect "no negotiated peace, no compromise, no opportunity to return."

Commission Planning For Nazi Treatment

7. Postwar plans—The European advisory commission in London now is at work "upon the treatment of Germany" and will propose to the Allied governments plans for concrete action. Meanwhile, the basis of U.S. policy is soundly established after two years of intensive study, "the direction is clear and the general methods of accomplishment are emerging." But this method will be useless unless it has the unified support of the people at home and acceptability to co-operating nations abroad.

The Secretary emphasized his relief that along with political arrangements for postwar security must go economic arrangements to give men and women everywhere an opportunity to improve their material conditions.

He restated his belief that the more than 30 boundary questions in Europe cannot be effectively settled while the war is still on.

"This does not mean that certain questions may not, and should not, in the meantime be settled by friendly conference and agreement," Hull said. "We are at all times ready to further an understanding and settlement of questions that may arise between our Allies, as is exemplified by our offer to be of such service to Poland and the Soviet Union. Our offer is still open."

London Press Plays Up Hull Talk

LONDON (CP)—The address of the U.S. Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, got top front-page display in British morning papers today, and London News-Chronicle noted "with regret" that he reiterated American nonrecognition of the French Committee of National Liberation.

The Liberal paper said in an editorial that, having demoted Gen. Henri Giraud, the triumph of Gen. Charles de Gaulle was complete and said: "In effect, he is taking to himself completely authoritarian powers . . . The British and American democracies do not wish to see France, when freed, governed by a dictator.

"The refusal to recognize the committee is a blunder. For Britain and America to try to by-pass this body could have only one effect—to put de Gaulle more firmly than ever into power. If, on the other hand, the committee were recognized, this would raise its prestige and authority. There would no longer be any doubt about out intentions either inside or outside France."

The Yorkshire Post said Hull's speech "marks a most important state in the development of United States co-operation in world politics."

Japs in India Force Way West Of Imphal Road

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Japanese besiegers of the plain of Imphal have sent small parties west of Bishenpur, 18½ miles southwest of Imphal on the Tiddim road, where they have been in contact with Allied forces and suffered casualties, the southeast Asia command announced today.

This was the first time that Japanese had been reported west of the Tiddim-Imphal road. (It indicated a Japanese effort to sweep around the Imphal defences from the southwest.)

British forces stutly defending Kohima, northern Imphal plain strong point, have wiped out Japanese groups which penetrated the town's tight ring of defences, killing a least 50 and taking others prisoners, the communique said.

Undeterred by losses, the Nipponese invaders continued their pressure in the whole Kohima area. Along the road from Tiddim to the south of Imphal the Japanese increased their pressure and were in contect with Allied defenders.

Fighting also was reported in the foothills north of the plain where further losses were inflicted on the enemy.

Kohima is a key defence point 35 miles southeast of the Bengal-Assam railroad which supplies U.S. and Chinese forces fighting in North Burma. It is 30 miles inside India and 60 miles north of Imphal, the Allies' major base in northeast India. Fifteen miles of the Kohima-Imphal road has been blocked by Japanese infiltration parties.

Fighting also broke out on the Arakan front to the south, where the Japanese made local unsuccessful counterattacks on both sides on the Mayu Range which cost them considerable casualties. The communique said West African troops inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy in a clash east of Kaladan village.

CHINESE ADVANCE

Forces of the Chinese 22nd Division pressing down the Mogaung valley maintained their contact with the Japanese, while in the other drive on Myitkyina, principal Japanese base in North Burma, Allied troops still were fighting the Japanese near the Tiang River on the Sumprabum-Myitkyina Road.

Throughout the entire Burma area Allied aviation continued to attack Japanese positions and communications.

The Southeast Asia command declared Sunday that a "small initial penetration" of Kohima's outskirts had been repulsed by the strong Allied garrison. Dimapur on the railway supply line is 35 miles northwest of Kohima.

(The Japanese had claimed capture of Kohima.)

MONSOON NEAR

The Japanese were bringing steady pressure to win the Imphal plain, rich in food, before the monsoon next month halts most military activities, but Allied troops were said to have a firm hold at the moment at the edge of the plain.

The enemy has come within 10 miles of Imphal from the northeast, on the road from Ukhrul.

(A BBC broadcast heard by CBS said Allied forces have evacuated Tamu, about 50 miles south of Imphal. Another BBC broadcast, also recorded by CBS, said British forces had made another air-borne landing behind Japanese lines due east of Imphal, between the Irrawaddy and Chindwin Rivers, to support a column already in that area.)

JAPANESE CLAIM

NEW YORK (AP) — The Berlin radio today quoted a Japanese government spokesman as saying in a Tokyo dispatch that the fall of Imphal, capital of Manipur, is a matter only of days. The broadcast said the spokesman declared the Japanese occupation of Kohima, April 6, "must be regarded as the introduction to further advances." (Allied Southeast Asia headquarters have not confirmed the fall of Kohima.)

SPECTATORS at the soccer match Good Friday between Victoria all-stars and North Shore were not impressed by the exhibition put on by the mainlanders. Going up against a local club that certainly lacked punch up front the Reds did not have any clear-cut margin by any means.

Pretty good indication that soccer has dropped far below its usual standard on the mainland the same as here. With a couple of forwards like George Payne and Alvin Parks, to provide some real shooting strength, the Victoria club might easily have won. The locals had plenty of scoring chances but lacked the forwards to put the ball into the net. McCann at outside right for Victoria should have scored at least twice, while Sinclair at centre forward passed up just as many opportunities.

"The old Victoria United club would have taken North Shore with at least a couple of goals to spare," was the way one fan summed up the exhibition. In all fairness to North Shore it must be said they were trying out three youngsters on the forward line and that might have had something to do with their low scoring performance.

Heard today the Navy will not be entering a club this season in the senior ball league. No official announcement has been made but at the annual meeting of the league the bluejackets were rated as probable starters. Seems the Navy have the players here to field a first rate outfit but have no guarantee the boys will be here all season and, they don't want to enter the loop unless they can be certain of being able to place a first-class club on the field at all times.

No Navy entry will be a serious blow to the league as the sailors were always popular with the customers. In the last two seasons they got into the play-off finals and, although beaten both times by the Victoria Machinery Depot, had a good percentage of the fans with them.

See where Joe Louis has arrived in Britain to give a series of boxing exhibitions at the United States army invasion bases. British sports fans are reported anxious to have Louis engage in a bout with Freddie Mills, British heavyweight titleholder. Some of them even hold the opinion Mills would stand a good chance to whip the Brown Bomber.

If Mills ever gets the chance to step into the ring with big Joe he wants to make sure he zigs and doesn't zag when Louis starts throwing those right-hand crosses. If previous British heavyweights are any criterion Mills would last about two or three rounds with the world champ.

Rosy Ryan and Burleigh Grimes nominate the late Ross Youngs as the greatest of all ball players, and the motion is seconded by Burleigh Grimes.

"I was in the majors for many years," says Ryan, "pitched in both leagues, saw some fine players—Ruth, Gehrig and many more, but the best, in my opinion, was Youngs. Some dispute my claim, but none saw as much of Youngs. John McGraw called him his best player. Ross couldn't be scared, not even by Burleigh Grimes. Cuts, bruises and injuries meant nothing. He played to win every game.

"Two slow-footed guys batted back of Ross and still the other side had trouble completing double plays. The San Antonio Express went into second base like a juggernaut. He came close to knocking shortstops and second basemen out of parks as he slid into the bag to break up double plays.

"I've never seen or heard of another player like Youngs."

Ross Youngs, stricken by a fatal illness at the peak of his career, shortly after the New York Giants' pennant-winning years of 1921-22-23-24, was indeed a remarkable outfielder—was McGraw's best ball player.

But not even John McGraw would rate Ross Youngs ahead of Tyrus Raymond Cobb and John Honus Wagner. They were in a class apart.

Vichigh Battles To Deadlock With North Vancouver

Racing 40 yards to gather up his own kick and fall on the ball for a major score in the final minutes, Williamson earned North Vancouver High School an 18 to 18 tie with Vichigh Giants in Saturday afternoon's exhibition intercity Canadian football encounter.

It was a thrilling finish to an interesting match with the Victoria youngsters displaying a lot of fight to give the more experienced mainland outfit one of its toughest engagements of the season. North Vancouver, under the coaching of George Deacon, formerly of this city, displayed a little more polish but had nothing on the Victoria club when it came to fighting spirit.

Vichigh moved into the lead in the first quarter when Booth went over the line on an off tackle play with Kirchener kicking the extra point to make the score 6 to 0. North Vancouver fought back in the second quarter and succeeded in charging over the Victoria line with Grant being responsible. The conversion failed, leaving Vichigh up 6 to 5 at halftime.

SECOND HALF

Third quarter saw the mainlanders put on the pressure and a succession of forward passes from McKay to Harrop resulted in the latter going over for a major score. Shortly after McLellan kicked a field goal, giving North Shore a 13 to 6 margin.

Final quarter proved the most exciting. Vichigh forced play within 20 yards of the North Shore line from where Booth crashed over and Kirchener kicked the extra point, making the score 13 to 12. Continuing to hold the upper hand Vichigh went into the lead when Gower recovered Grant's fumble on the 10-yard line and raced over for a touchdown. Kirchener again kicked the extra point, giving the locals an 18 to 13 lead. With only minutes remaining Williamson followed up fast on his own kick to score the touchdown to tie the score.

Trail Smokies in Canadian Final

Beat Port Arthur 3-2

WINNIPEG (CP) — British Columbia's only junior hockey team—Trail Smoke Eaters—were a singing, excited group of youngsters today as they neared Toronto for the Memorial Cup finals and the Dominion championship best-of-five series against either Oshawa Generals or Montreal Royals.

Nosing out Port Arthur Flyers in three straight games to become the first B.C. juniors to win the western title was "like a dream to all of us," said Manager Louis Demore as he momentarily overlooked the driving ability of his kids.

A well-balanced club, with a flare for the "pro" style of play, Smokies used their heads as much as their skates to blaze their way along the Memorial Cup play-off route, when they downed Flyers 3 to 2 in the third game here before 4,500 fans Saturday night, they were the slowest team on the ice. But they were the best passers, best defensive crew and operated with rhythm, in front of jumping, wiry 16-year-old Bev Bentley, nephew of the Delisle, Sask., Bentleys.

FINE RECORD

Trail downed Port Arthur 4 to 2 in overtime and 4 to 3 in the first two games, after winning six of eight games against Regina Commandos in a virtual double best-of-five semi-finals series. They earlier whipped Edmonton Canadians two straight in their only other junior competition this season. Before that, they had several exhibitions with their senior brothers—Trail Smoke Eaters—who did not enter play-offs for the Allan Cup.

Demore, in building the team the last five years has encouraged music in off hours and the rhythm seems to last in their games.

In Saturday's contest, Roy Kelly picked up a perfect pass at the goal crease for the first goal, Clarence Marquess netted another on a solo rush and Dick Butler got the other on a play with Lorne Depaolis.

Port Arthur's greater speed took effect with five-man power-plays in the third period when Flyers got two goals back in the first nine minutes, scored by Louis Nistico and Steve Black.

Trail iced the puck to relieve pressure as the game neared an end. In the final 30 seconds Bentley came out of his goal dropped to the ice, and forced Black to flip the rubber over the goal at a time when five Flyers milled near his cage.

Goalkeeper Allen Byers was removed in the last 49 seconds for a forward while Flyers ace centre, Nistico, rested in the penalty box for boarding.

Summary:

First period — 1, Trail, Kelly (Butler), 3.42; 2, Trail, Marquess, 17.16.

Penalties—None.

Second period—3, Trail, Butler (Deapolis), 14.04.

Penalty—Sherget.

Third period—4, Port Arthur Nistico (McKay), 4.03; 5, Port Arthur, Black (Sherget), 8.17.

Penalties—Toffolo, Nistico.

Hedlunds Capture Opening Game For Canadian Honors

WINNIPEG (CP)—Vancouver Hedlunds, defending their Dominion senior women's basketball championship for the third successive year, trounced Winnipeg Altomahs 42 to 27 here Saturday night, in the first game of a best-of-five series. Second game will be played tonight.

Hedlunds took an 8 to 4 lead in the first quarter and remained the dominant team throughout. At half time the west coast representatives had increased their lead to 25 to 12.

Altomahs, with gaining confidence and better ball handling held their own during the third quarter, matching Hedlunds' 12 points. Play slowed down in the final quarter with Hedlunds adding five points and Altomahs three.

Kay MacArthur, on leave from the R.C.A.F. women's division, starred for the winners with 15 points. Rita Bell, captain of Hedlunds found the net on five goals in addition to dropping two foul shots for 12 points.

Teams and scores follow:

Hedlunds — MacArthur (15), Bell (12), Wilson (6), Smith (4), Beech (3), Burnham (2), Crowley, MacDonald and Russell.

Altomahs—Stiles (10), Hawkins (8), Krescey (4), Wallins (4), Matoski 1), Brook, Duncan, Harwood and May.

Victoria Juveniles Drop Soccer Finals

VANCOUVER (CP)—In juvenile soccer matches here Saturday, teams from Vancouver defeated Victoria representatives by lone tallies in two games.

In the first game of the third division juvenile final, Hastings Bluebirds won from Victoria Maple Leafs 1 to 0. The only goal scored came when Tommy Green, of the Bluebirds, swept past Victoria defence men and netted the ball just before the half-time mark was reached.

In the fourth division juvenile final, Marpole met stiff opposition from Victoria City. It was a ding-dong battle all the way, with little to choose between the two teams. It was not until after the interval that Ed. Hamson, of Marpole, scored the winning goal.

Devil Diver Takes Paumonok Handicap

NEW YORK (AP)—Turnstiles clicked off an attendance record and the pari-mutuel machines beat out a near record tune as New York's racing season opened Saturday at Jamaica, but the favorite players took it on the chin as Devil Diver defeated Apache in the Paumonok Handicap.

Surpassing the track record of 37,284 set on the opening day three years ago, 45,796 fans taxed every facility of the compact Long Island track and poured $2,601,836 through the machines to approach the world betting record for seven races of $2,852,414 established at Jamaica last fall.

FOUR FREEDOMS WINS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Eddie Arcaro made it a clean sweep of Florida's big stake races by booting Four Freedoms to victory Saturday in the $10,000 Tropical Handicap, the closing day feature of the southern season.

Christopher Ranch's Argonne Woods was second and Coward and Dupuy's Marriage was third.

Canadiens Win Third Straight From Hawks

Watson Fires Home Winner In Keen Duel

CHICAGO (AP)—The powerful Montreal Canadiens, defeated only six times in 58 games this season, today were on the verge of a clean sweep of four straight over Chicago Black Hawks and possession of hockey's greatest prize, the Stanley Cup which they won last in 1931 by defeating the Hawks.

Whipping across two goals less than a minute apart early in the final period Sunday night, the Canadiens came from behind to win 3 to 2 at Chicago stadium in the third game. They won the opener at Montreal, 5 to 1, and the second contest here, 3 to 1.

Last night's encounter, witnessed by 17,694, was Chicago's finale and the teams move to Montreal to finish the best-of-seven series. If the heavily-favored Canadiens are upset by the Hawks in the fourth game Thursday, the teams will battle again Saturday. The sixth and seventh games, if necessary, will be played the following Tuesday and Thursday.

Centre Phil Watson slammed in the winning marker last night in the third to break a 2 to 2 deadlock after Mike McMahon, rugged defenceman, had tied the count with an unassisted goal.

George Allen had put the Hawks in front, 1 to 0, early in the first period and the Chicagoans held the edge until Toe Blake of Montreal tallied in the second.

The Hawks again grabbed the lead in the third on a drive by 18-year-old rookie Johnny Harms.

Getting an assist on Blake's marker, Maurice Richard, sensational Canadian right wing, established a new record of 15 points for Stanley Cup play—10 goals and five assists. The old mark of 14 was held by Syl Apps of Toronto and Don Grosso of Detroit.

SUMMARY:

First period—1—Chicago, Allen (Wiebe) 5.14. Penalties—Wiebe, Dahlstrom, Watson.

Second Period—2—Montreal, Blake (Richard) 2.02. Penalty—Getliffe.

Third period — 3—Chicago, Harms (Johnson) 4.16; 4—Montreal, McMahon 5.47; 5—Montreal, Watson (Getliffe) 6.42. Penalties—Cooper, Watson, Bentley, McMahon, Filion.

Lodestars Beaten By Odd Counter; Lose Connie King

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — New Westminster Lodestars today were trying to devise playing strategy to stop Port Arthur Shipbuilders first stringers — Stan Robertson, Norm Larson and Waikko Koivisto—the scoring power that has Lodestars a game down in the western Canada senior hockey finals.

The teams meet tonight in the fifth of best-of-seven series for the right to meet either Quebec Aces or Frood Miners in the Allan Cup final.

In the fourth encounter Saturday night centreman Robertson scored twice and assisted in three for a 5 to 4 Port Arthur victory while he and his Wingers figured prominently in Shipbuilders' 6 to 1 win earlier. The first game was a 5 to 5 over-time tie and Lodestars took the third 2 to 1.

The rugged struggle wound up in a near free-for-all when defenceman Frank Warshawski of New Westminster and Larson exchanged punches in the final five seconds. These two received majors, though several tiffs occurred earlier, with Lodestars getting five of seven minor penalties.

Besides Robertson, Shipbuilders' goalgetters were Koivisto, Larson and defenceman Joe Gollat. Bus Brayshaw, playing-coach Frank Dotten, Warshawski and Pete Leswick tallied for Lodestars, with Leswick also getting two assists.

The British Columbia champions will be without Connie King, veteran centre, for the rest of the series. Dotten announced King had been called home and that his team would not seek a replacement.

QUEBEC WINS

TORONTO (CP) — Jubilant over their decisive 6 to 2 defeat of Frood Miners here Saturday night, Quebec Aces prepared for the next game here tonight confident of sweeping the best-in-five eastern Canada senior hockey finals in three straight games.

Playing coach Billy Reay, predicting his team would take the lighter Sudbury team tonight, planned no changes in the line-up that marked up decisive 5 to 1 and 6 to 2 wins in the series so far. Coach Frank Graham of Sudbury also planned to use the same line-up, with his starry centreman Jim Dewey still unavailable. Graham had hoped to ice Dewey Saturday night, but the mining engineer-hockey player was unable to get away from his work.

OSHAWA BEATEN

MONTREAL (CP) — The pressure will be on Montreal Royals tonight as they face Oshawa Generals for the fourth time in their Memorial Cup semi-final series and attempt to deadlock the count at 2 to 2 and force a deciding game in Toronto.

Royals pulled an upset Saturday night when they nosed out the powerful Generals 5 to 4 after Oshawa had taken two straight in Toronto, but there was considerable doubt around town today as to whether Royals had the class to win again.

The margin of victory Saturday night came in the dying minutes of the game when Jean Paul Denis drove one past Harvey Bennet for the winner that broke a 4 to 4 deadlock with less than two minutes to go.

Babe Pratt Honored

Awarded Hart Trophy

MONTREAL (CP) — Walter (Babe) Pratt, the big ice-general who helped Hap Day weld a bunch of youngsters into the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs, today was announced the Hart Trophy winner as the man most valuable to his National Hockey League team this season.

The 28-year-old defenceman who spent quite a bit of his time during the season up roving among the forwards, just barely nosed out Boston's perennial Bill Cowley in the voting of selected sports writers from the six N.H.L. cities.

The Babe had 87 points of a possible 120 in the final tabulation announced by the N.H.L. today, while the great Boston centre who spent more than a month on the sidelines due to injuries this season had 84.

The race was between those two. Far behind was Chicago's Slim Doug Bentley with 55 points, three more than his battling teammate Earl Seibert. Trailing them were high-scoring Lorne Carr of the Leafs with 45 points, and Elmer Lach, centre dynamo of a Canadian powerline, with 42.

HEXTALL LISTED

Behind the big six came Carl Liscombe of Detroit, Bill Durnan of Canadiens, Boston's Herbie Cain, Bryan Hextall of Rangers—Bryan deserves a special cheer for that, considering the woeful showing of Rangers—and Chicago's Clint Smith who has already won the Byng trophy for combining ability with sportsmanship.

In taking the trophy first awarded in 1923 by Dr. David A. Hart, Pratt joined a select group of hockey greats of the past two decades. Previous winners include Eddie Shore, four times, Howie Morenz, three times, Nels Stewart, twice, Roy Worters, Babe Seibert, Frank Neighbor and Aurel Joliat.

Cowley took the cup last year and in 1941. Tommy Anderson of Americans won it in 1942, Ebbie Goodfellow of Detroit in 1940 and Toe Blake of Canadiens in 1939.

Island Pipers Hold Reunion, Lieut.-Governor Promises Aid

Greater Victoria will have a cadet pipe band if the wishes of the Vancouver Island Pipers' Society, backed by the practical help of Lieutenant-Governor W. C. Woodward come true, and there is every indication they will.

The old pipers held their annual reunion Saturday night in the Army and Navy Veterans' Building on Wharf Street and their guests were a group of young pipers, including members of Vancouver's noted 72nd Seaforth Highlanders Cadet Pipe Band. The band's spirited and well-nigh perfect playing of such Scottish favorites as "Caller Herrin'" and "Scotland the Brave" so inspired the Lieutenant-Governor that he said he would donate $500 to the Pipers' Society to help start a similar cadet band in Victoria.

His offer, entirely unexpected and unsolicited, brought hearty applause and cheers. In addition, His Honor invited Capt. W. L. Waldie and the band to Government House Easter Sunday morning.

HIGHLAND MUSIC

The re-union was a great success and for nearly five hours the skirl of the pipes was heard, with hardly a break. The Scotsmen and their guests had a wonderful time as the bagpipes performed unchecked and wild Highland music held full sway. More than one old piper tapped his feet completely lost in the sounds that, in the ear of the Scot, make the world's finest music.

Arrival of His Honor, the society's honorary president, was greeted with Scottish formality. He was met at the door by two Seaforth pipers, Pipe-Major William Baird and Sgt. Hughie Aird, and piped to the head table, where he was welcomed by the president, Capt. C. R. Wilson, in formal Scottish attire, complete with brilliant red kilt. His Honor had been met previously by Capt. Colin Rutherford, also in Highland dress and Col. H. M. Urquhart, commanding officer of the Canadian Scottish Regiment. He was accompanied by Col. J. R. Kingham, former O.C., the 1st battalion, Canadian Scottish and Capt. J. G. Cromack, Government House private secretary.

HIGHLAND HONORS

The whole company drank the King's toast, with Highland honors, which meant everyone stood, one foot on a chair and the other on a table. Then came the Lament, in a darkened hall, in memory of fallen comrades.

There was keen interest in the various competitions, the results being as follows: Original compositions, 1, Piper Donald MacLean, Glasgow; 2, Piper Donald MacLean, Victoria; 3, Pipe-Major Donald Ross Riddell, Inverness. Amateur competition, 1, William Baird, Vancouver; 2, Hughie Aird, Vancouver; 3, Ray Gandy, Victoria. Open, 1, Donald MacLean, Glasgow; 2, Pipe-Major D. R. Riddell, Inverness; 3, Pipe-Major William Lamont, Victoria.

Besides the piping, there was other Scottish entertainment. Carl Horthy, possessor of a fine tenor voice, delighted the Scotsmen with "Blue Bells of Scotland," "Mary of Argyle," "Robin Adair" and "Lassie o' Mine," accompanied at the piano by Jack I. Smith. George Green, cornetist, played "Flanders Fields" and "Annie Laurie." Walter Burgess, champion Scottish dancer, gave a Highland fling and an intricate sword dance.

There were many piping solos and quartettes and trios of marches, strathspeys and reels. Pipe-Major Donald Cameron, who had played the Lament, gave a fine rendition of El Alamein, which had won a competition in the Middle East last year. A Piobaireachd was given by W. Urquhart, pipe major of the Glengarry Girls' Pipe Band of Vancouver.

Oldest piper present was Pipe-Major John Reid and he was presented with a clump of true Scottish thistle by R. D. Young of Esquimalt, who is nearing his 80th birthday.

Capt. Wilson presented to the Lieutenant-Governor the original script of a tune written in his honor by William C. Ferguson, a Great War veteran, who is now blind.

PROUD HERITAGE

In a brief, pleasant talk before he left, Col. Woodward made the announcement of his $500 gift to start a cadet pipe band here and suggested it be affiliated with the Canadian Scottish Regiment, as the Vancouver cadet band is affiliated with the Seaforths.

"I don't know any people who have a heritage of which to be so proud," His Honor told the Scotsmen. "You're pioneers all the time—and great people—you've got something no one else in the world has. Thank God you've got it—hang on to it."

As His Honor left everyone sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and gave three cheers and a tiger.

Capt. Wilson told the gathering that J. J. Wood, superintendent of the Dominion Government experimental farm at Saanichton, who was present, is trying to obtain certain seeds to grow hardwood which may in time provide materials for the manufacture of reeds for the bagpipe. If this is successful, Capt. Wilson said, it will supplement what Donald Cameron is doing to make chanters of Vancouver Island hardwood.

Many a Scottish toast was drunk, as the pipes skirled and the tartans waved. There was heather on the head table, which was draped with the Lion flag of Scotland and around the walls were the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes.

SCOTTISH BLOOD

It was an interesting gathering, and if they were not born in Scotland, those present had Scottish blood in their veins. Dr. Wallace Gunn, from Glengarry, a town in Ontario that is more Scottish than Scotland, was present in kilt and talked of what the Society hopes to do for young boys of Victoria when the cadet pipe band gets going. J. B. Munro, deputy minister of agriculture, and Capt. C. C. Sainty, retired skipper of Ss. Princess Charlotte, were there. Brig. J. Sutherland Brown chatted to old soldiers and had the time of his life. Dr. W. W. Newton, from the pathological laboratory at Saanichton was there, as were Col. Don McGugan, Alderman Lloyd Morgan, who had, earlier in the evening, with Mayor McGavin, entertained the Seaforth band at a City of Victoria supper.

Bobby Birkett, of the 3rd Canadian Scottish, acted as an unofficial liaison officer between the pipers of that regiment and the Seaforths. Telling tales of the sea was 18-year-old Fred Copas, son of the late Harry Copas. Fred is in the Merchant Navy and has been sailing on so many Scottish ships in recent months that he has quite a Scottish burr and enjoyed talking to Piper Bob Dick of Vancouver, born on the prairies, but possessor of a strong Scots accent, which he can use to advantage at pipers' meetings. Ed Whyte, prime mover in many local Scottish societies; Lieut. A. J. Allnut, master at Gaelic and interpreter when necessary, and general dictionary on the kilt and Scottish music, also were in attendance.

Many Turned Away As Easter Services Fill All Churches

Victoria churches this Easter were filled with music, spring flowers and capacity congregations that in some cases overflowed into halls and vestries as special services were celebrated in every house of worship in the city.

Half an hour before the Easter service at First Baptist Church commenced, people were being turned away. Those who managed to obtain seating accommodation heard Sgt. Donald Buchan lead the choir and a 30-piece band in many choral and solo numbers.

Overflow from some of the smaller churches dispersed to the larger churches, such as Christ Church Cathedral, where Easter music and special anthems were played by Ernest Willoughby. At the Metropolitan Church Frank Tupman led an augmented choir in the "Pentecost" and "Descent of the Holy Ghost," which was accompanied by Edward Parsons at the organ and Winnifred Milburn at the piano. This was Part Three of Gounod's cantata "The Redemption," first two parts of which were given Good Friday and at the Easter Sunday morning service.

Easter carols were sung at 7 in the evening in St. John's Church, preparatory to the evening service, while the Christian Science Church, also filled to the doors, featured traditional music and prayers. Five soloists against a choral and organ background provided the music for the Centennial United Church.

Among those taking part were Mrs. S. Swetnam, Mrs. A. H. Sheard, E. J. Bonfoy, J. Almond and W. T. Almond.

Monthly meeting of the Victoria Natural History Society will be held in the Provincial Library at 8 tomorrow night, when an address will be given by W. H. Matthews on "Glaciation in Southwestern British Columbia."

Dunville, Sardis; Mr. Burbidge, Royal Oak; Mr. Douglas, Thrieve Farm, Saanichton; Mr. Grauer and many others. Since then some high-priced bulls were purchased and there are a great many animals of superior quality in the sale, giving an excellent opportunity to buyers to purchase high-class stock at a time when good breeding means so much to real success.

Harry Austin, 64, Ex-Railman, Dies

Henry Martin "Harry" Austin, 64, for 44 years a Vancouver Island railroader, died at his home, 230 Robert Street, Sunday afternoon after a long illness. Since 1939 he had been retired.

Born on Jesse Island, B.C., Mr. Austin started work for the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway as an engine wiper in April, 1895. The road was then owned by the Dunsmuirs, who had built it.

LATE HARRY AUSTIN

After two years as a wiper, Mr. Austin became a fireman and two years after that was promoted to an engineer's rank. He was then 20 years of age. Steadily rising in the service, Mr. Austin was chief locomotive engineer for the E. and N. when he retired. He was suitably honored on that occasion by fellow employees and J. A. Kennedy, E. and N. superintendent, paid him this tribute: "He was a friend and counsellor to every employee under him—a fine type of man and one of the best in the business."

Mr. Austin was presented with a Westminster chimes clock, suitably enscribed; two easy chairs and a tea wagon for Mrs. Austin. Later he received a scroll bearing the signatures of every company employee.

The veteran railroader traveled thousands of miles up and down Vancouver Island. He had friends at every railway station, who were sorry when the time came for him to retire. In 1917 he was badly injured in a wreck near South Wellington, when the engine he was driving left the tracks.

Since his retirement and until illness interefered, Mr. Austin spent his leisure time in his garden and on the bowling green. He is survived by his wife, a sister in Seattle and a stepsister at Union Bay.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Modern Pharmacy and Cunningham Drug Stores, or any druggist, and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Jack London's Life Makes Great Movie

The romantic, adventurous image of one of America's most dashing figures flashed across the screen today at the Oak Bay and Plaza Theatres and his presence was a welcome one.

The occasion was the showing of Samuel Bronston's first independent production, "Jack London," released through United Artists.

The title role is played by Michael O'Shea, newcomer to films who scored so roundly in his first picture, "Lady of Burlesque." O'Shea, whose resemblance to the author is so remarkable that old-timers in the audience gasped in astonishment the first time he appeared on screen, recreated the virile, daring London in a big-league performance the like of which has not been seen in these parts for an age. Young and beautiful Susan Hayward starring as Charmian London, wife and beloved traveling companion of Jack London, served as an outstanding partner for the vigorous brilliance of O'Shea's performance.

Abbott, Costello In 'It Ain't Hay'

Comedians Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, recently acclaimed the nation's No. 1 box office champions, also hold an enviablle record for aiding the sale of war bonds and war stamps.

Before beginning work on their new Universal picture, Damon Runyon's "It Aint Hay," now at the Rio Theatre, the comics visited 87 cities and 101 war production plants in the course of 34 days.

The tour was probably the most intensive ever staged by Hollywood personalities. The Treasury Department's figures on the whirlwind drive credited Bud and Lou with garnering $85,000,000 in bond and stamp sales.

Capitol Presents New Bogart Film

"Passage to Marseille," the new Warner Bros.' picture starring Humphrey Bogart in a timely story of daring and courage, comes to the Capitol Theatre today. As a fighting French journalist who has been railroaded to Devil's Island, Humphrey Bogart leads four of his fellow-prisoners to freedom and the chance to give their lives in their country's death-struggle against Hitler.

Michael Curtiz, director of the record - breaking "Casablanca," again lends directorial guidance to a brilliant supporting cast including Claude Rains, Michele Morgan, Philip Dorn, Sydney Greenstreet, Helmut Dantine, Peter Lorre and George Tobias.

Max Steiner composed the music for this Hal B. Wallis production, scripted by Casey Robinson and Jack Moffitt.

Laurel and Hardy Get Bustle Bound

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, starred in "The Dancing Masters," are the bustle-bound buffoons who make the dance the screen's dizziest business in 20th Century-Fox's hilarious new hit opening tomorrow at the Dominion Theatre.

Heading the featured cast is beautiful Trudy Marshall in the romantic lead, her first leading role since being signed to a brand new contract. Others featured are Robert Bailey, Matt Briggs, Margaret Dumont and Allan Lane.

SHE SAMBAS BY THE SEA SHORE—Glittering Rio de Janeiro is the scene of this rhythmic samba, where beautiful Copacabana Beach provides a setting for some of the gayest and most fascinating goings-on in Walt Disney's South American feature, "Saludos Amigos." You recognize Donald Duck; the girl is a Carnival star; Joe Carioca, the Brazilian jitterbird, is the third, a new character you'll fall for. "Saludos Amigos" is a deliriously happy entertainment filled with melodies, beauties, charm and humor of our Latin-American neighbor now being shown at the York Theatre.

Atlas to Present Great Salten Story

"Florian," long-heralded drama of the fall of the Austrian Empire, and one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's most important pictures of the season, is the attraction currently at the Atlas Theatre. Based on Felix Salten's novel, the play tells the love story of a boy and girl against the cavalcade of Imperial Austria at the height of its opulence and romance, the war, revolution, fall of the Hapsburg dynasty that ruled the nation for nearly a thousand years, and world reorganization. The romance is traced through a beautiful Lippizan Baronova stages a colorful ballet, the review of the Lippizans, Imperial horses, in the Emperor's riding school in Vienna, festivals and gayety. Amid this a Lippizan colt is born at the Imperial farm where Young is a groom. Miss Gilbert, a royal duchess, is interested in the colt, and through their mutual interest the two fall in love, though the vast differences in their station forbids such a romance.

'Yankee Doodle' At York Theatre

Eddie Foy Jr., the one who was born next to closing into the family, having been number six of seven theatrical children, stepped, literally, into his father's shoes recently.

Eddie started work in Warner Bros.' "Yankee Doodle Dandy," now at the York Theatre, playing Foy Senior, and when he stepped into his first scene with James Cagney he wore a pair of his dad's dancing shoes.

"Comics have marshmallow hearts," was the way young Eddie explained it. "Dad would have gotten a kick out of this. I know I'm getting a great thrill out of it myself."

Mrs. Huntly Green To Give Recital

In aid of the Red Cross, Gertrude Huntly Green, distinguished Canadian pianist, will be heard in recital Friday evening, May 5, at 8.30 in the Victoria High School auditorium. This recital, sponsored by the Victoria Chapter of the Toronto Conservatory Alumni Association, will mark the welcome return of this artist to the concert platform here in almost two years.

The men in the Services, however, have been more fortunate than the musical public of Victoria, for Mrs. Green, whether on tour across Canada or at her home in Esquimalt, always finds time to entertain them. She enjoys doing so, in fact she admitted she would play for the men more often, "if there were more pianos." On other occasions her programs have given delight to local school children, with whom she is a great favorite.

In the professional field Mrs. Green has firmly established herself in the opinion of critics and audiences alike as a pianist of the first order.

For her Victoria recital on May 5, the artist will play by request, "Carneval" by Schumann, as well as masterworks by Bach, Mozart, Debussy, Medtner and—"lots of Chopin."

'Japs Not Wanted In B.C.'---Maitland

VANCOUVER (CP)—Opposition to postwar settlement of any Japanese in British Columbia gained strength Saturday when a number of the 60 delegates attending a quarterly meeting of the B.C. executive of the Progressive-Conservative Association spoke against such settlement.

The subject was first aired by Attorney-General Maitland, who reported that as a result of a conference he had just held with the federal justice minister, action may be taken against persons acting as agents for Japanese in obtaining land here.

"British Columbia does not want the Japs," he said. "Our difficulty is that we have not sold that idea to the people of the east. Ottawa control is one that does not pay proper attention to needs of the west."

Although no resolution was presented on the subject, a number of the delegates, in brief speeches during the business sessions of the meeting, backed up the Attorney-General's stand in no uncertain terms.

The meeting brought delegates from such distant points as Vanderhoof, Omineca, Fort George, Revelstoke, the south Okanagan and seven of the eight Vancouver Island provincial ridings. There was a big attendance from Fraser valley points. Dr. R. W. Alward of Prince George, first vice-president, was in the chair.

Many Winnipegers Wintering in City

W. A. Mather, Canadian Pacific vice-president, Winnipeg, arrived in town Saturday to find a whole colony of Winnipeg people here.

Both he and W. M. Neal, first vice-president, Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal, here since Thursday, met scores of Winnipeggers, many of whom they know personally, wintering here. Mr. Neal was formerly of Winnipeg. There were 87 Winnipeg visitors here this week.

Mr. Mather, who is accompanied by Mrs. Mather, plans to remain in the city a week. They are having a reunion with their son, David, who is a cadet at H.M.C.S. Royal Roads.

Social Agencies Want $700 From City

Council of Social Agencies today informed the City Council that unless the city provides $700 this year, the summer program of park recreation for children will have to be discontinued.

Last year the city put up $350 and the council found the addition $350. This year the council is unable to make any contribution and asked the city for $700. They city replied with a grant of $350.

"We very much regret seeing the playground supervision discontinued, as we believe it has proved valuable—particularly in checking juvenile delinquency," said a letter to the city from the council, over the signature of Mrs. Frances Barr, secretary.

For the last two years the council has arranged programs for children in Beacon Hill and Central Parks.

The council asks the city reconsider its grant in estimates committee.

Juneau Mine Closes

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—The largest low grade ore mine in the world, the Alaska-Juneau Mine, closed Saturday. Approximately 225 men were affected.

General Superintendent Joe Williams said the shutdown was necessitated by the awarding of a 14 cents an hour increase in wages by the U.S. National War Labor Board.

Oil from the liver of the soupfin shark at certain seasons of the year has a vitamin A yield of 200,000 units per gram, as against 3,000 units from codliver oil.

ANGLES, SAXONS AND JUTES HAD HOMES IN DENMARK AREA

About 1,500 years ago there reached England many thousands of "new settlers." They came from the continent of Europe. Often they fought with the native Britons, and were able to win the battles.

With the passing of time, many of the newcomers married with Britons and formed what came to be known as the Anglo-Saxon nation. Besides the native residents of Great Britain, this nation included the Angles, Saxons and Jutes.

In the border region of Germany and Denmark there is an area known as Schleswig which contains a district called "Angel" or "Angeln." This district is believed to be the early homeland of the Angles.

Most of the Angles settled on the eastern side of England, from the county known as Suffolk up to Scotland. At first they lived chiefly on the coast of the North Sea, but they later spread inland, forming the powerful kingdom of Mercia in central England.

It is from the Angles that the name of England came. "England" grew out of "Angla-land" or "Engla-land."

The Saxons also had an early home in the Schleswig area, and were closely related to the Angles. The Saxons, however, spread far and wide over what is now called Germany. For a time they held power over great stretches of land between the Elbe and Rhine rivers. A part of Germany today bears the name of Saxony.

Many Saxons invaded the southern half of England. There is an English county now known as Essex, meaning "land of the East Saxons." There also are the counties of Middlesex (Middle Saxons) and "Sussex" (South Saxons).

Less is known about the Jutes, but they are supposed to have come from Jutland or Jute-land—in other words from Denmark.

Several kingdoms of the Angles, Saxons and Jutes were united by King Alfred the Great. The Jutes came to be more or less forgotten, and people spoke of England's "Anglo-Saxons." In years which followed, large numbers of Norsemen and Normans came to England and mixed with the people already living there. (For History section of your scrapbook.)

Letters to the Editor

WANTS PROOF

Mr. Harrison Brown has written to the press stating that British Israel has imported, in hundreds, the "Protocol of Zion."

Please would Mr. Abraham elucidate this—and confirm or deny.

WILLIAM JOHNSTONE.
712 Yates Street, April 7.

PROBLEM OF PALESTINE

Mr. Abraham was very vague in his letter concerning "Palestine" and the Jews.

The resurgence of the word Semitic appeared first in Germany, for the purpose of creating racial strife within the Christian world in order to substantiate their own claims to the master race of Aryans—which is an enormous lie. They are Hamitic. And their time is short.

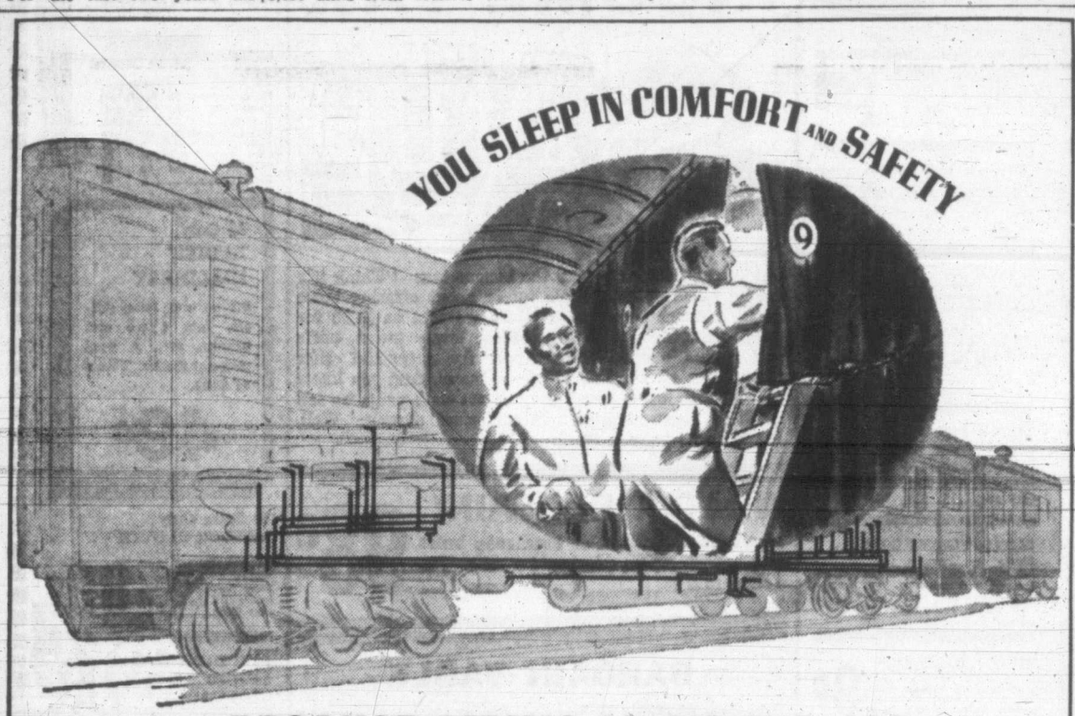
YOU SLEEP IN COMFORT AND SAFETY



...BECAUSE PIPING IS ON THE JOB

BEFORE you drop off to sleep up there in your berth, Mr. Traveller, take a few minutes to consider how directly the comfort and safety of your journey depend on piping, fittings and valves.

Under your car is the airbrake system—running the length of the train and controllable in the engineer's cab and at each individual car. There are the steam pipes of the heating system; the hot and cold water and waste lines of the plumbing system you'll use in your morning "wash-up". If you were to go up ahead and peek into the engineer's cab, you'd see a spectacular array of valves, fittings and piping. From the cow-catcher on the locomotive to the flexible connection under the rear platform, a modern train is a maze of steam, water and air lines—the hidden piping which spells speed, safety, comfort . . . and modern railroading itself.

You'll find Crane valves, fittings and pipe—identified by name or marked with the initial "C"—on the job here, too.

DIAL 1480

One Woman's Day . . .

By NANCY HODGES

FROM LATHE TO SKILLET

SKIMMING OVER THE report of the Dominion subcommittee on the postwar problems of women, I note it is anticipated that many of them will return to domestic service.

And to make the reconversion of the lathe into the skillet as painless as possible, the committee invokes the institution of more uniform standards in household work, and proper training, so that the employee will have something more concrete to offer than the old type and often misleading references.

All of which is interesting. And it remains to be seen how many of our erstwhile "chars," daily girls, as well as cook-generals and Chinese cooks, will be as ready to desert the shipyard and factory for the kitchen as they were to go the reverse way.

SITUATION ACUTE HERE

And by that I don't mean the larger households which have been forced to simplify their mode of living through lack of accustomed maid service.

But health and social agencies have found that, in some of the homes to which they have been called, their work was left incomplete or undone because of the need for someone, trained in household management, who could be sent in for a short period to relieve the sick or otherwise handicapped mother of her duties and worries.

There was also the home where the mother had got into financial and other difficulties owing to her being a poor manager, but with ability and willingness to learn if some capable person could work with her for a short time.

VISITING HOUSEKEEPERS

SO TO MEET the situation, the Red Cross Society proposes to experiment with a Visiting Housekeeper Service here.

The idea isn't a new one. In fact it was promulgated here some time ago by Miss J. E. M. Bruce, as the result of a survey made by her committee into the domestic help problem and the status of household workers.

But the idea took definite, concrete form at a recent meeting between Red Cross officials and representatives of various agencies and organizations interested in social welfare, health and community betterment.

There it was finally decided to launch a service under Red Cross auspices, similar to that operated in Hamilton, Ont., under the guise of the Homemaker Service.

FOR EMERGENCY ONLY

IT MUST BE clearly understood that this is solely for emergency purposes. The service definitely is not intended to supply maid service.

Its function is to provide visiting housekeepers, qualified to assist families in a period of crisis, doing practical work in the home and instructing as opportunity affords.

This service will be offered in Victoria in three ways, either on a fulltime basis for a temporary period, or on a daily basis, or on an hourly or part-time basis.

It is intended to give assistance of a limited duration in a home, during illness or other emergency. Such services would be those that the mother or relative would give under normal conditions.

FIVE TO START WITH

THESE DUTIES, for instance, may include cleaning the house, preparation of meals, arrangements for laundry, marketing, care of children, simple nursing procedure.

And, as opportunity occurs, the visiting housekeeper will show the mother, or whoever is in charge, how to cope with problems of child care and the preparation of nutritious meals, and budgeting.

Victoria will start with five trained workers, who may be assisted by volunteers. All will be trained in nutrition and food preparation, household management, home nursing and social service.

RED CROSS EXPERIMENT

IT IS HOPED to get the scheme launched by the beginning of May, and it will be tried for six months as an experiment, by which time it will be possible to judge of its success or otherwise.

The workers will be well paid, thus recognizing what has long been apparent—that only by raising the standard of efficiency of household help will its status be improved.

But the fact that the visiting housekeeper will be well paid will not deprive a poor but needy family of her services in an emergency.

In that case, the family will be asked to contribute as much as their slender resources permit, and the Red Cross will pay the rest. Or in the extreme cases, the Red Cross will assume the whole cost.

TWOFOLD PURPOSE

THIS NEW SERVICE is different from those one usually associates with this great, international humanitarian agency.

And while it is launched to meet a wartime need, it is hoped it will continue to function as a peacetime activity.

For it seems destined to fill a twofold purpose—helping hard-pressed families in a crisis, and meeting a long-overdue need for some directive towards the raising of the standard of household service.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

Turn Spotlight On "Clarkson"

Almost overnight, Clarkson has become famous. This little town on the lakeshore west of Toronto is now the site of an immense oil refinery which is supplying aviation gasoline and lubricants for Canada's war effort.

In building this new, modern plant, British American Oil Company encountered many serious problems, including the control of a very wide range of temperatures. And that is where Johns-Manville came into the picture. J-M engineers recommended the proper type, size and application of insulating materials—and J-M insulation applicators installed thousands of feet of pipe covering and thousands of square feet of insulation in sheet, block and blanket form. Without such insulation it would be economically impractical, and in some cases impossible, to operate the B.A. Oil plant.

Cheap Golds Brisk

TORONTO (CP)—Aside from the moderate strength displayed by the base metal stocks, the market maintained a fairly even keel. The action continued heaviest in the cheaper golds.

Better prices were boarded in the industrial section for the utilities and foods while the senior oils, liquors and papers were steady in the average.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK (AP)—Rails and scattered industrials edged into the recovery van of today's stock market but many leaders were unable to surmount light selling hurdles.

The Canadian section showed little activity and Distillers Seagrams, with a ½ point gain, was the only issue to show definite improvement. McIntyre also firmed ⅛ but what others did appear were slightly easier.

Dow Jones averages closed today as follows:
30 industrials 139.11, up 0.01
20 rails 39.71, up 0.15
15 utilities 23.02, off 0.03
